DERAILED NEW HAVEN ENGINE LUNGES FOR HOUSE AS THOUGH PERVERSELY HUMAN

Engineer John H. Sylvia of Provincetown, burned and injured, in the wreck of his train at Rockland, gamely attempted to walk away unassisted. He had to accept aid, however.

The "mystery" wreck at Rockland. At the Vernon street crossing, south of the station, the locomotive, hauling two coaches with forty passengers bound for Boston, suddenly jumped the track. With almost human perversity, it just fell short of crashing into the house.

NEW HAVEN ENGINE MYSTERIOUSLY HOPS TRACK AT ROCKLAND

The engineer and fireman were burned and injured and forty passengers were badly shaken up today when a Rockland to Boston train on the New Haven Railroad jumped the track at the Vernon street crossing, south of the Rockland station.

One of the two passengers cars was derailed, the locomotive got off the right of way at an angle, narrowly missing crashing into a dwelling house, and the tender tipped over.

The injured are:

Engineer John H. Sylvia of Provincetown.

Fireman A. J. Nicholson of Plymouth.

The other two members of the train crew, Conductor E. L. Rogers of Hanover and W. E. Christiansen, baggage master, escaped injury.

How the train left the rails was a mystery, for there is no switch or turnout at this point. She "just left."

The engine and tender careened off a stone milepost on one side of the track and swayed across the rails

The Sheep Jumped Two Hats, One Coolidge's Gas Bombs at Home She Missed the Close

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1926, by Star Company)

WILD TIME in Wall Street. Frightened gamblers threw overboard one million shares in yesterday's "first hour." The day's proceedings, 3,723,000 shares, broke "all records for all time." There are many sheep among humans. One, frightened, jumps over the precipice, others follow. The big men go to the foot of the hill, pick up the remains, and that is "the profit."

THE EXCUSE for the panic, which won't last, is the Interstate Commerce Commission's veto of the "Nickel Plate" consolidation of railroads.

Consolidation would be a good thing, properly planned, and is actually recommended by the commission, which rejects the plan submitted. Later, probably, the consolidation will go through. Then prices will climb up and the little lamb with the broken back will ask himself, "Why did I jump?" He jumped, because he was gambling, not investing. Gamblers are nervous.

YOUNG THEODORE ROOSEVELT, whose father hunted big animals in Africa, returns from hunting big animals in Asia. His expedition was financed by James Simpson, of Chicago. Theodore Roosevelt the second is emphatic as he can be, snaps his teeth very nicely and says "his hat is in the ring." Interesting, not important. Calvin Coolidge's hat is hanging on a peg in the White House, and will probably hang there from 1928 to 1933.

IN CASE of a change in that program, Mr. Hoover is ready with his hat, and thinks he can make it, although he has never shot anything much bigger than a rabbit. And there is Senator Borah, a mighty hunter in the American political jungle; his hat is picturesque.

IT ISN'T NECESSARY yet to consider Democracy seriously. Governor "Al" Smith, of New York, will probably make another try. Mr. McAdoo, of California, says that if so, he will run against him. Then high finance will doubtless compromise on another Mr. Davis, and that will be all of that.

SOMEBODY SHOULD warn owners of mills in Passaic that they are rupning risks. This nation was interested when gas bombs first appeared in the big war. It will not be pleased to hear of employers fighting a strike, legal in its character, using gas bombs against their workers, and turning heavy streams of cold water on women and children, when tear gas failed to do the work.

NOW THE WORKERS have bought two thousand gas masks to be ready for the next

STOCKS SOAR UNDER HEAVY BUYING ORDERS

New York, March 4.—After ten consecutive days of falling prices, in the course of which the price structure of industrial and railroad stocks was shaken to its foundation, the market showed sharp recovery in active stocks today.

As the day advanced, the market held its strength. Early this afternoon American Can jumped 18 points to 208 and General Electric gained over 21 points to 226¾. United States Steel, Pere Marquette and many other stocks were higher. The close was active and higher.

Three important factors contributed to the rally in prices today. These were the extending of the so-called banking support to the speculative leaders by financial interests, the covering of shorts by the bearish traders and the final appearances of the "bargain hunter," who recognized that many stocks at current prices were attractive from the investment standpoint.

A reaction from the opening prices was the signal for an aggressive buying movement in the rails and industrial leaders, and prices moved forward from 5 to 15 points.

Trading was in smaller volume and in much more orderly condition proposed court reforms in order to advertise himself for political office, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin declared today that he sought to curb probation, paroles and other symptoms of leniency because since he assumed the duties of registrar 3,500 persons have been killed and 110,000 injured by automobiles in this state.

"I am not running for public office," he told the legislative committee on the judiciary at the hearing at the State House on his bills to restrict the discretionary powers

"The reason I am urging these reforms is to try to do something to stop this wholesale slaughter."

He urged immediate action and advised against the appointment of a commission of investigation, saying that Chicago, after six years with such a commission, found it necessary to appeal to the U. S. Senate for aid, crime had increased so greatly.

$3,900 A YEAR FOR MRS. L. V. GROVER

Mrs. Eleanor C. Grover of Lynn, whose husband agrees to pay her $75 a week for separate support.

Salem, March 4.—Lyndon V. Grover, shoe manufacturer of Lynn, will pay his wife $75 a week for her separate support, according to an agreement filed in Probate Court today.

The separate support was ordered by Judge Dow several months ago, following collapse of the Grover divorce suits and her new fight in court, the second one for separate support.

Placing of the decree in operation was held up pending agreement between counsel on the sum.

Today this agreement was reached and Grover, under its terms, will pay to Mrs. Eleanor C. Grover $75 a week until such time as the order may be changed by the court, if ever.

The weekly payments are made retroactive to November 12, 1925, which will give her $1,200 in a lump sum to start the payments off.

ATTORNEY FLAYS U. S. WITNESSES AS 'LIARS, CROOKS AND BRIBERS'

The entire government case in the Chelsea rum conspiracy trial was built up on the testimony of convicts, Attorney John P. Feeney, senior counsel for the defence, declared in his final argument in Federal Court today.

They were self-confessed violators of the law who sought favors for what they gave on the witness stand, Attorney Feeney added, characterizing important government witnesses as accomplices, crooks, bribers and perjurers.

U. S. District Attorney Harold P. Williams began his closing argument for the government at 2:29, after Attorney Feeney had concluded.

Mr. Williams started by reviewing the testimony of all the government witnesses, laying stress on the part of their evidence which bore directly on the various defendants. He particularly praised Austin Scannell, newspaperman, who, he said, told an honest, straightforward story.

Attorney Feeney concluded his remarks by appealing to the jurors for a square deal for the 14 defendants, the most prominent of whom are Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and his brother, Police Inspector Thomas Quigley.

In closing Attorney Feeney denounced the government for failing to produce witnesses of unquestioned reputation and credibility.

"Munchausen and Ananias would have active competition here if they were alive today," said Attorney Feeney.

WOMAN FIRED ON IN HUB STRIKE; 40 NEAR PANIC

The garment workers' strike took on a more serious aspect today when a man on a roof attempted to kill with a revolver shot, a woman worker in Samuel Blotcher's suit and cloak shop at No. 49 Bennet street, South End.

Only by a scant foot did the bullet miss the woman. It hit the brick wall a foot away from the fourth floor window at which she was standing.

She screamed and the forty other women workers in the room screamed also, some of them almost fainting in fright.

The woman fired upon was Mrs. Louise C. Reel, and fellow workers, seated near the window, who almost missed being hit by the bullet were Mrs. Rose Gordon of No. 116 Devon street, Roxbury; Mrs. C. L. Finneran and Ernest Martin of No. 370 Princeton street, East Boston.

GIRLS 'DRAW A BEAD' AT MAINE UNIVERSITY TO OUTSHOOT HE-MEN OF THE WOODS

Here are girls in the Maine University Rifle Club, who defeated the cock-sure men's team in four bitterly fought contests on the range, then set out for new worlds to conquer. They are Gertrude Gray, Mary Mahoney, Margaret Fraser, Margaret Preble, Edith Andrews and Beatrice Myers.

Gertrude Gray, crack shot of the girls' team, who beats the former world's champion 22-calibre rifle shot, shown as she gloats over Vernon H. Sammess of the beaten boys' team.

Here is another pose of Maine University's best shooters. The boys' team now says they're better marksmen even than Cupid. They are Gertrude Gray, Margaret Preble, Margaret Fraser, Edith Andrews and Mary Mahoney, ready to shoot all comers—as the targets, of course.

LAW QUIBBLES FLAYED BY WHIPPLE

ing. Sixty-five out of every 100 put on probation become offenders again three, four or more times, he said.

The hearing on Goodwin's bills, which began Tuesday, was brought to an end with the committee taking the recommendations under advisement.

AIDE OPPOSES READING.

Taking his stand on the opposite side of the discussion from his "boss," First Assistant District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County told the committee that he is squarely behind Goodwin's advice. District Attorney Reading had previously spoken against the bills.

"There certainly are loopholes and criminals and their partners, the criminal lawyers, are only too quick to find them," he declared. "The statutes are antiquated, obsolete, drafted for little English cities whose needs were as far from the needs of our present-day communities as New England is from California."

District Attorney William S. Clark of Essex County spoke in opposition to Goodwin's bills and defended the not pressing power of district attorneys, saying:

"I will continue to not pros cases without consulting any court or judge. The consequences are on my conscience, on nobody else. It is a waste of time at $1,000 a day to prosecute when not guilty verdicts have been returned in similar cases."

Clark advised the establishment of a county circuit court to hear appeals in automobile cases, lesser liquor cases and other minor violations of the laws.

In a spirited argument Attorney Sherman L. Whipple urged giving the judges more powers, instead of restricting them, so they may go straight to the heart of cases before them rather than sit as mere referees.

Attorney Whipple, one of the leading lawyers of the country was accorded close attention by many State officials at the committee hearing. He advocated sweeping aside the technicalities and quibbling that he said cloud issues, trap judges and defeat justice.

He pointed to the numerous retrials that are made necessary because of quibbling over merely technical matters.

The general feeling among the public is that something must be done, some reform made, he declared.

"There is a difference of opinion, no doubt, as to how criminal offenses should be punished," said Whipple. "Keep them in jail, say some, while others advocate less drastic methods.

CITES FEDERAL PROCEDURE.

"It would be interesting, it is true, to note what effect leniency would have, to see whether he would offend again if let loose, but this would be very dangerous and the man who was held up and beaten or shot might well feel that his rights were not being considered."

Attorney Whipple went before the committee as a lawyer accustomed to practice only in the civil courts, and he spoke, he said, merely on the basis of his observations as a member of the general public.

He discussed the whole subject without definitely taking sides either for or against the specific bills introduced by Goodwin.

Although the English courts are applauded for a high standard of efficiency, our courts surpass them in many respects, he said, but he deprecated the constant "battle of wits" and other tactics of all sorts that are a menace here.

A prominent business man who had acted as foreman of a jury once told him, he declares, that things the jury wished to hear because of their apparent importance were excluded, and things that they did not rate as important were allowed in as evidence. The result was the jury took into consideration what they recalled of the excluded evidence, thus going to the heart of the issue at hand.

The courts should be given an opportunity of leadership, he urged. At present this is forbidden, except in the Federal courts where the privilege granted the judge is never abused as far as he has observed.

He also cites the cases of auditors and masters who are allowed to submit reports on cases and to have their reports go in as evidence, together with a direct recommendation as to what the decision should be, even though evidence they have heard is often largely hearsay.

GOODWIN RAPS RATES.

Registrar Goodwin accused Commissioner of Correction Stanford Rates of making Scripture appear inconsistent in support of leniency to criminals.

"The Scriptures plainly teach that unless there is contrition tere cannot be reform or pardon," he said. "Repeated offenders are not entitled to clemency. I don't want to be severe with first offenders or second offenders, but after the second time the man should be made to serve the sentence as imposed without parole."

'Tammany Rose' Is Mother; City Hall Highly Excited

"Tammany Rose," a protege of Janitor Hughie McLaughlin of City Hall, became a mother today and by the same token McLaughlin became a godfather for the eleventh time.

In the midst of the noon-day rush in the corridor of the city collector's office, Rose became the mother to as promising a litter of kittens as Hughie ever acted godfather for.

Strong-armed policemen named Patrick J. Lahey and John N. Harkins, held back the curious crowd, and City Collector William McMorrow rendered first aid in the form of hot milk.

Rose, a hold-over from the Curley administration, is well and favorably known in the Hall, and many were the congratulations showered upon her. In the midst of the excitement Hughie bustled up and carried mother and kittens to his apartment in the basement. They were reported as doing well.

RIFLE HONORS GO TO CO-EDS IN 4 TESTS

They'll be writing dime novels yet about Mrs. Kit Carson and Mrs. Daniel Boone.

Perhaps those brave-hearted pioneer women could outshoot their famous sharp-shooting husbands, and perhaps they made many a squaw bite the dust, though history doesn't so record.

But in any event the female of the species is more deadly than the male with a rifle. Take the University of Maine girls' rifle team, for instance. The girls organized their team, had their practice sessions while the boys jeered, and then promptly challenged the boys' team.

The he-men of the dense Maine woods, in a somewhat bored manner, took down their guns from the racks and went out to show the girls just how little they knew about drawing a bead.

The result is history in Orono. The girls won the first match, and the he-men talked about chivalry toward the ladies. The girls won the second match and the boys spoke of "breaks" and luck. The girls won the third match, and the boys said they were out of practice. The girls won the fourth match and the boys were fit to be tied. There was to have been a fifth match, but report has it that no boys appeared on the scene.

Then the girls went out and cleaned up the males from Cornell and other points south and west of Maine, incidentally rolling up a score of 498 against the astonished Ithacans. The Maine girls now lead the inter-collegiate shoot.

BOYS CONFESS ROBBING POOR BOXES IN CHURCHES

Following complaints from churches in Newton, Waltham and Watertown of robberies of their poor boxes, two Newton boys, whose names are withheld by the Boston Evening American, were arrested by Inspector John T. Shaughnessy of the Newton police, who says the boys confessed. Part of the stolen money, $35, was returned by the boys, who are held for juvenile court tomorrow. Among the churches robbed are the the Corpus Christi Chuch, Auburndale; the Church of Our Lady, St. James the Evangelist of Newton; St. Bernard's Church of West Newton, and St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart Church of Waltham.

SAVES FAMILY FROM ACTUAL STARVATION

The stern visage of Police Sergeant Howard P. Kempton is but a mask hiding a heart of pure gold, in the opinion of at least one family beside his own, for Kempton's generosity and thoughtfulness is responsible for assistance given an almost destitute Dorchester mother and her three hungry children.

The sergeant listened patiently to the pitiful story that little George and Florence Harris poured out to him after they had walked fearfully into the Fields Corner police station to find out what "tlie big cops" had done with their daddy.

Kempton found that Albert Harris, really the children's stepfather, had been sent to the State farm at Bridgewater for three months, so he buckled on his duty belt and went home with them to No. 284 Hancock street, where he found that the mother and children were in dire need.

Calling the city poor department for assistance, he left the family with assurances that aid would come quickly, and then went into a restaurant down the street for his dinner.

"That hot food, with those poor kids starving, was too much for me," said Sergeant Kempton when pressed to give against his will something of the story of what he did. "I just fixed them up with a good meal, that's all."

To some other Good Samaritan, as yet undiscovered, Mrs. Harris looks for clothing and shoes for her tots. In spite of illness, she does not want to break up her little family, the children of her first marriage, and who she declares she has kept together for three years only by a constant struggle, because of the habits of her second mate.

"Liar," Cries Dry in Attack on Prelate

Washington, March 4 (I.N.S.).—Representative Upshaw (D), of Georgia, dry leader, shouted the word "liar" on the floor of the House today in assailing the statement of an unnamed Catholic prelate who said that "prohibition is habitually practice misrepresentation."

"These hypocrites," said Upshaw, "say that my comrades are hypocrites and liars and I answer traducers high and low 'You are another.'"

Upshaw's speech was in reply to one by Representative Tinkham, who charged drys with being "fanatics," and quoted from Cardinal O'Connell that drys practiced misrepresentation. Upshaw said:

"I don't propose to allow any man to declare, without my indignant protest, that the stalwart, God-fearing men and praying hand-maidens of God who fought for prohibition on their knees as well as at the ballot box are given to 'habitual practice of misrepresentation.'" guns, was raced into the district from the Lagrange Street Station, but although the roofs were searched thoroughly, the would-be assassin escaped. A "John Doe" warrant was sworn out for the woman's assailant.

Theshooting marks the second act of violence in two days, Helen E. Cole, a worker in the Liberty Dress Company establishment in Beach street being struck on the head yesterday by a brick thrown by a strike sympathizer.

Samuel Blotcher, the shop proprietor, told the Boston Evening American that he believes he knows the identity of the man who fired the shot.

He was one of a group of 100 strikers and strike sympathizers who raided the Blotcher establishment yesterday and attempted to riot, he said.

At that time, Blotcher, with his brother Irving, at the head of a dozen employes, drove the invaders out of the building by the lusty swinging of iron bars.

An extra detail of police went into the garment strike zone today under orders by Captain Goodwin of the Lagrange street station as a result of an open shop worker, Helen E. Cole, being struck by a brick yesterday.

Back Bay women members of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts and the Massachusetts League of Women Voters arranged a meeting at the Twentieth Century Club for the purpose of establishing a joint board of sanitary control to oversee conditions in garment shops.

Dr. Alice Hamilton was to preside, with the speakers scheduled as Mrs. Arthur Rotch, Mrs. William Z. Ripley, Ethel Dougherty, Mary C. Wiggin and Julius Hochman, vice-president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 4 (A.P.)—Some of the society matrons here play golf and tennis for exercise and amusement and some go in bathing every day, but Mrs. Arthur B. Claflin gets her daily diversion by acting as foreman for a squad of street cleaners.

Every morning she gets up at 7 o'clock and starts in showing "the White Wings" how to sweep properly. Most of them never had worked under a woman until Mrs. Claflin took them in hand. She keeps them moving.

Mrs. Claflin acts as foreman, with the consent of the Palm Beach city government, but does not receive any pay.

She received her appointment because of her position as president of the Women's Civic Club of Palm Beach, which has been agitating cleaner streets at the resort.

the end of the Rockland branch line the locomotive was running in reverse in hauling the short train. The locomotive tender was the first to leave the rails and a hunt was begun for a broken flange or broken wheel.

Traffic on the branch line was blocked for hours as a result of the wreck, the track having been ripped away as well as covered with wreckage.

A freight train caboose and engine were used to haul the wreck passengers from Rockland to North Abington, where they made connections for the Boston train, reaching the Hub at 12:24.

Throughout the rest of the day—while the debris was being cleared up and the rails repaired—the New Haven operated buses over the road from Hanover to Rockland on the regular train schedule.

Henry Casey, the fireman, leaped for his life just in time. The locomotive, before it could be stopped, bumped across the rails and ties again and plowed to a halt in the embankment near the house and store of Maurice Caplice.

At 9:05 the train left Rockland and had proceeded only a short distance when it derailed.

Spewing fire from the locomotive firebox and steam shot out, enveloping the engineer and fireman and causing their more serious injuries.

The passengers made their way along the roadbed back to the station and some one rang in a fire alarm. The firemen extinguished the fire in the locomotive when they arrived.

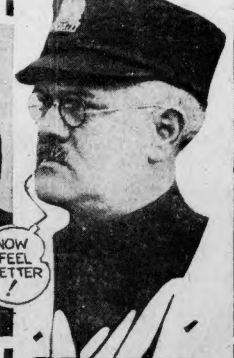
'THE LAW' RELAXES STERN VISAGE TO RELIEVE DESTITUTE DORCHESTER FAMILY

Mrs. Albert Harris, whom a Dorchester police sergeant found in her home, No. 284 Hancock street, Dorchester, near starvation and promptly bought for all four a good meal besides summoning aid from the city's poor department.

These are Mrs. Harris' children by a former marriage. Left to right, Russell, Florence and George Schnurbush. Florence and George had gone to the police station to ask what had been done with their stepfather. It was found Harris had been sent to the State Farm at Bridgewater for three months. So the police sergeant went to investigate, discovered the destitute condition of the family and "dug down" to provide quick and generous relief.



Here is Sergeant Howard P. Kempton himself, who was first the close investigator and then the Good Samaritan to woman and children.

George and Florence were the hungriest of the four when Kempton took a bountiful dinner to their home from a restaurant where he had had his own meal. "That hot food with those poor kids starving was too much for me," he said later. "I just fixed them up with a good meal, that's all."

POLAR STAR 'IN BAD' ON DOC COOK

Dr. Grosvenor Shows Norwegian First Gave Admiral the Credit for Great Discovery

Washington, March 4 (A.P.).—The statement of Roald Amundsen in January on the claims of Dr. Cook and Admiral Peary to discovery of the North Pole was responsible for the National Geographic Society withdrawing its invitation to the Norwegian explorer to lecture before the society this month, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, said today.

"No contract had been entered into," said Dr. Grosvenor, "nor had any announcement of the lecture been made. Amundsen stated that the interview was garbled, but a telegram to the New York Times which was read to me by Minister Bryn (of Norway) was not a retraction of his (Amundsen's) reflections on Peary."

HUNTED HIM AT POLE.

Dr. Grosvenor recalled that last Summer, when Amundsen was apparently lost in the Arctic, the National Geographical Society authorized Donald MacMillan, leader of its expedition in the far north, to abandon all plans for exploration and help find Amundsen.

He said the National Geographical Society had in the past extended to Amundsen "greater honors than accorded to any other explorer excepting Peary."

In accepting from the society a special gold medal in 1913, Dr. Grosvenor said, Amundsen attributed to Peary his decision to attempt the discovery of the South Pole.

After recalling that in 1901 he was preparing an expedition for either the South or the North pole, Dr. Grosvenor quoted Amundsen as saying:

GAVE PEARY CREDIT.

"Then suddenly the news flashed all over the world that the North Pole had been attained; that Admiral Peary had planted the Stars and Stripes up there. . . .

"One of the last mysterious points of the globe had been discovered. The last one still remained undiscovered, and then it was that I took the decision to turn from the north toward the South, in order to try to discover the last problem in the polar regions. So you see, it was really Admiral Peary who sent me away."

ARRESTS LOOM IN KILLING OF BOY

Accompanied by Sergeant Benjamin Wall of Division 11, Chauncey Sheldon, 14, of No. 19 Bruce street, and Norman Brown of Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, today began a search for the hardware store in Milton where Brown is alleged to have purchased cartridges, one of which resulted in the death of eight-year-old Arthur De Stefano, of No. 285 Ashmont street, Dorchester, during a game of "Indians and cowboys" on the lawn in front of the little victim's home.

The bullet said by the boys to have been fired by Fred W. Breill, 11, of No. 229 Ashmont street, was one of several discharged during the afternoon from a single chamber revolver purchased by the Sheldon boy from a mail order house some time ago. The boys told the police they had cut the bullet from the shells but investigation by Medical Examiner Leary showed that a small particle of lead had remained in the cartridge, which caused the death of the De Stefano boy.

Brown told the police he could find the store where he had bought the cartridges and identify the clerk who made the sale. Arrests are expected to follow the identification, according to Sergeant Wall.

Wales as Child "Renounced" Throne

London, March 4 (I.N.S.)—The Prince of Wales made up his mind when a child that he would never be King of England, according to a tale published today in the second volume of "Uncensored Recollections," by an anonymous author.

The book states that King Edward once told the Prince of Wales, who was then a small boy:

"You must be a good boy, David, for if you are not when you become King they will cut off your head as they did King Charles."

The small Prince is said to have replied:

"Oh, I don't care. I never shall be King."

4 MAIL PLANES BURNED AND WORKMAN INJURED

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 4 (I.N.S.)—Four air mail planes were destroyed, one man was injured and $75,000 damage done by fire at the air mail field here today, due, it is believed, to a short circuit. Sam Weller, a mechanic, inspecting a plane, pulled the light switch and a burst of flame enveloped the machine. Weller was seriously burned about the face and chest.

SAYS HUSBAND GAVE HER KICK AS RECEIPT

Amelia M. Ciccolo says she objects strenuously to being the target for tomatoes or the bottoms of jars, though she didn't care a rap about having a revolver brandished before her or seeing razors and hearing threats to mar her beauty. Today in her divorce case she recalled some of her experiences before Judge Beane in Probate Court, East Cambridge.

She testified that last July she gave her husband Guecano Ciccolo, $3,000 and that his receipt was a kick. Amelia had the cancelled check in court.

She testified the money was given after he demanded it continually from February to June, 1926, to do something for his parents, whom Amelia refused to have live with them. She had been sending them $2 a week and produced cancelled checks to prove it.

Ciccolo was in the service a year and on discharge was given vocational training for three years at Franklin Union. His wife said his chief ambition seemed to be to sit around the kitchen and complain.

'L' CONTROL FOR 10 YEARS URGED BY SEN. RICE

Solution of the financial problems of the Boston Elevated on a ten-year instead of a thirty-year extension of public control basis is urged by Senator Abbott B. Rice of Newton.

The Rice plan would extend public control for ten years, provided the stockholders on or before July 1, 1926, accept a new contract effective as of that date, whereby they agree to accept in lieu of the present 6 per cent. dividend a dividend of 4 per cent. in cash and 2 per cent. in new stock.

"This will yield the 'L' $475,000 a year by the sale of new stock," he said today. "A similar amount of bonds can readily be sold which will provide the company with $950,000 new capital a year during public control.

"A part of $400,000 saved by operating economies can also be considered as new capital. This plan gives the stockholders better than 5½ per cent. and provides new capital for the Elevated at less than 6 per cent."

It is understood Rice will offer his plan as a substitute when the 20-year extension bill comes before the Senate.

Not War; Strike

Wool mill strikers are at war in Jersey, and to prove it they are doffing up in gas masks to outwit the police, who hurl bombs to disperse them during rioting at big Passaic plants.

'NO CITIZEN BUTCHERY,' IS STATE EDICT

Jersey Strikers March on the Mills as Police Strip Off Gas Masks; New Battle Looms

Passaic, N. J., March 4 (I. N.S.).—Striking mill workers of Passaic, Clifton and Garfield, following reported attacks on strikers by police, were discussing the advisability today of appealing to Governor A. Harry Moore to proclaim martial law and send troops to protect the strikers.

The Governor said he was opposed to sending State troopers or militiamen to the strike district if he could avoid it, as "they would have to help the police."

"I am for the people," Gov. Moore added. "I will not allow citizens to be shot down by any one. There is no need for violence.

"We settled a similar strike in Jersey City and there was no violence."

Protected from tear bombs and other missiles of the police by gas masks and trench helmets, 2,000 textile strikers gathered today for another attempt to break through the police lines and picket the mills in Clifton and Passaic.

At Clifton police awaited their arrival, guarding the bridge into the city.

Undaunted by the action of police in stripping pickets of their helmets today, the strikers, many of them ex-service men, donned steel headpieces taken from Germans during the war.

Two armored cars, containing photographers who were clubbed by police yesterday, preceded the marchers.

Police in Riot Smash Cameras, Maul Strikers

Passaic, N. J., March 4 (A.P.).—The strike of 7,000 workers in the woolen mill districts here, quiet for most of its six weeks' duration, today had assumed serious proportions.

Within the last two days police have dispersed strikers by force, resorting to the use of night sticks to scatter 3,000 workers on the boundary line between Clifton and this city.

Newspaper reporters and photographers were the chief sufferers when police bore down on the gathering with night clubs. Ten still and motion picture cameras valued at $4,000 were smashed when photographers tried to take pictures of the riot. One woman reporter's notes were taken from her and torn up.

The riot was the sequel to another the day before in which strikers were dispersed with water from fire hose after gas bombs proved ineffective in a high wind.

EX-SCHOOL AGENT'S KIN HELD IN BANGOR FRAUDS

Bangor, Me., March 4 (A.P.)—John S. Dalton of Brewer, brother-in-law of Chester P. Stewart, former school agent of Bangor, on pleading not guilty and waiving examination was placed under bail of $1,000 and of $2,000 on charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from the city and of forging endorsements. Dalton was not in the employ of the city but his cases are said to be linked with those of his brother-in-law Chester P. Stewart, former school agent.

Both men will be arraigned in May. Through school frauds the city is said to have lost $20,000.

DR. LEGER EXONERATED BY JURY ON GIRL'S DEATH

Dr. Alfred Leger of Massachusetts avenue was cleared of all blame by a Suffolk Superior Court jury in connection with the death of "Eva Algee of Framingham. The girl was declared to have died following illegal surgery performed on last December 16. The South End doctor was accused, but no evidence to support the charge was found by the jury in arriving at its decision that exonerated Dr. Leger in the case.

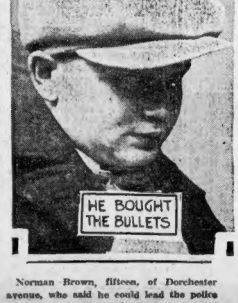
HOW YOUNGSTER PLAYING 'INDIAN' WAS KILLED BY LITTLE 'COWBOY'



Norman Brown, fifteen, of Dorchester avenue, who said he could lead the police to the store that sold him lead-loaded cartridges for a gun.

Chauncey Sheldon, fourteen, who told police he purchased from a mail-order concern the gun with which Arthur M. De Stefano, eight, was killed.

This is how the little boy was wounded fatally when he and other boys were playing "Indian and cowboy" at his home, No. 284 Ashmont street, Dorchester. A particle of lead was left in one of the cartridges and it did the damage.

Arthur M. De Stefano, eight, whose death resulted when Fred W. Breill, eight, of Ashmont avenue, fired at him in play with a supposedly "blank cartridge."

COOLIDGE GAINS WEIGHT UNDER WHITE HOUSE GRIND

Washington, March 4 (A.P.)—President Coolidge today rounded out his first year as occupant of the White House in his own right. In all he has served more than two and a half years, as chief executive, his elevation to that office upon the death of Warren G. Harding preceding by nineteen months its inauguration last March 4 as a President elected by the people. The White House grind which has worn down more than one President, apparently has had no ill effect on Mr. Coolidge. He is enjoying excellent health and weighs as much if not more than he did on taking office.

STOCKS SOAR IN MILLION-SHARE MARKET

than in the last two boisterous sessions. The volume in the first three hours today was 1,600,000 shares, against 2,160,000 shares in the same period yesterday.

Baldwin was up 5 at 109, United States Steel up 2, Coca Cola up 5, Chat Iron Pipe up 14. Pere Marquette led the rally in the railroad stocks with over a 7-point advance to 77¼. Chesapeake & Ohio, Katy, New Haven, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central made price gains of from 1 to 3 points in active trading.

Hudson advanced 5¾ points to 112¾; General Motors was up over 3 at 121¾; Independent Oil & Gas up 5; Mid-Continent Oil up 2; Pullman up 5. Call money was unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Traders rushed in to buy the railroad stocks as a result of reports that the Van Sweringen brothers would submit a new application to complete the Nickle Plate merger.

The volume of trading increased in this final period and the ticker fell considerably behind the actual trading on the floor of the Exchange. Consequently the highest prices of the day appeared after the closing gong had sounded and brokers had left the place of activity.

Prices Mostly Higher in Boston Transactions

Prices were mostly higher in Boston Stock Exchange trading today. Gillette Safety Razor, which was heavily sold yesterday, staged a rapid comeback, and was up 2 points in the first few minutes of trading, later adding to its gains.

Dodge Motor "A" was up 1¾ at 23¾. U. S. Rubber advanced 3 at 70¾.

Gilchrist added a point at 37. Radio was up 1⅜ at 34½. Nash gained 1¼ at 56¼.

East Mass. St. Ry was a weak feature, off 3 at 50.

WIFE SUES FOR $50,000 FOR HER HUSBAND'S LOVE

Hester A. Rautenberg of Cambridge today brought suit for $50,000 in Suffolk Superior Court against Catherine M. Feeley of Montebello road, Jamaica Plain, alleging the alienation of the affections of her husband, Otto G. Rautenberg. The plaintiff charged that the defendant enticed her husband from home, inducing him to leave her, and that the condition had existed for ten or fifteen years prior to October 19, 1924. During that time the defendant was alleged to have threatened the plaintiff's husband with violence. Counsel in the suit are Abraham Zintz of No. 101 Tremont street and William G. Andrew of No. 472 Cambridge street, Cambridge.

COOLIDGE, FIRST YEAR UP, UNDECIDED ABOUT 1928

Washington, March 4 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge ended the first year of his presidency "in his own right" at noon today and began another.

The date could not pass at the Capitol without causing a buzz of discussion over the most popular bit of political speculation of the waning session of Congress, to wit: "Will Calvin Coolidge be a candidate to succeed himself?"

There was no answer to be had, only speculation. Those closest to the man in the White House say he himself does not know on this March 4 what his political status will be on March 4 three years hence.

He has discussed it with no one—not even the closest of his few intimates. They credit Mr. Coolidge with too much political sagacity to make the mistake that Theodore Roosevelt once made in a similar situation—announcing he would not be a candidate. It was an indiscretion that Roosevelt later regretted, and a decision that he later repudiated.

3 CAUGHT WITH $25,000 LOOT FACE COURT

Some of Stolen Goods Found in Homes of Dorchester Women

Caught with $25,000 worth of loot when the police of the Dorchester and East Dedham street divisions joined forces, three Dorchester youths today faced court charged with ten counts of breaking and entering and two charges of stealing autos.

The three are: Arthur Camellia of Dorchester avenue, James Delouris of Clayton street and William Carolan of Ridgewood street.

Delouris and Carolan were held in $10,000 each for further hearing by Judge Sullivan in Municipal Court while Camellia was held in $7,500.

The loot recovered included much wearing apparel, including fur coats, shoes, silk stockings, silk dresses and also watches, revolvers and jewelry.

The three, say the police, made tailoring establishments, drug stores and pawn shops their targets.

The fact that among the loot were thirty silk dresses and that many of the fur coats were for women has caused the police to search for possible "sweethearts" of the Dorchester trio.

One of the stolen automobiles was recovered with much of the booty.

The officers responsible for the capture of the three are: Louis Di Sessa, Coleman Joyce and Arthur Tiernan of Captain Driscoll's East Dedham street division and Leo O'Connell and Cornelius Leary of the Dorchester division.

Much of the loot was discovered in the homes of two Dorchester women who, the police believe, have no connection with the thefts.

Plea of Countess Set for U. S. Court Friday; to Fight Return to Island

New York, March 4 (A.P.)—The Countess of Cathcart will be surrendered by her counsel to the immigration authorities just a half hour before the hearing of the habeas corpus proceedings brought in her behalf is called tomorrow.

This decision was announced today following an agreement reached by Assistant Secretary of Labor Risley and the Countess' counsel, Arthur Garfield Hays. The ten-day liberty, under bond, granted to the Countess, after she had been ordered excluded from the country on grounds of moral turpitude, expired at 11 o'clock last night.

She has not reported back to Ellis Island, and said she would remain at her hotel until sent for by the immigration authorities.

The Countess will be turned over to the immigration authorities in the Federal Building, rather than on Ellis Island, it was announced, to avoid difficulty in producing her in court. Judge Bondy, in United States District Court, will hear arguments on her habeas corpus writ.

MAYOR HITS AT NEW MILK RATE

Mayor Nichols will appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to prevent application of increased freight rates on milk until an impartial investigation can be made.

The Mayor announced that he would ask the Federal commission to suspend the increases which New England railroads have made, for the full period of 120 days allowable under the statutes.

"I am of the opinion at present that the increased rates of approximately 20 per cent. would result in an unreasonable cost to the consumer for milk, cream and other dairy products," he said.

"I am much opposed to any increased retail price for this very important food item and therefore I will appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of the City of Boston."

In a letter to Mayor Nichols, Homer Loring, chairman of the executive committee of the Boston & Maine Railroad, asserted today that the advance amounts to only 1-5 of a cent a quart.

"We feel there is no occasion for any material advance to the consumers," wrote Chairman Loring. "An operating loss of several hundred thousand dollars a year was shown by the railroad in handling milk. The increase is necessary to reduce this loss and it will still leave the road short of a fair return.

"As you know, the Boston & Maine Railroad is making an extraordinary effort to place itself in a position to better serve Boston and New England. We believe the public is willing to pay fair rates for transportation."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Richard Platt and Louise Bernherd Delight Music Loving Throng

MUSIC OF MUCH EXCELLENCE, REALLY a superlatively brilliant program, was set forth for the edification of guests at Richard Platt's Lime street studio when that well known musician was host for one of his delightful musicales. Mr. Platt and Miss Louise Bernherd shared honors and applause from a charmed audience.

OF COURSE MR. PLATT, whose place in Boston's younger musical set is eminently secure, needs almost no introduction, for his admirers are legion and when he is induced to play at one of his musicales (he is host every other Wednesday during the Winter) treat is the satisfaction.

ADD AS CO-STAR then such a marvellous young soprano as Miss Bernherd and there is a musical treat rarely pleasureable. Miss Bernherd delighted everyone, with her golden voice, with her gracious poise, and certainly with her girlish beauty.

FOR THE MUSICALE she wore a simple frock of pompadour taffeta, of the green-blue tint called wave-crest. Mrs. Wellington Smith, Miss Bernherd's accompanist, added her talents to the program's great success. Mrs. Smith's frock was a crepe of palmette [illegible].

NOTABLE IN THE SMALL and smart company at Mr. Platt's well appointed Lime street studio-residence was Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, very distinguished in a wrap of black Persian lamb over a frock of black crepe worn with a chic French chapeau.

MRS. JOHN L. AMES and her daughter, Miss Muriel Ames, were guests. Mrs. Ames in wrap of black and chapeau of bronze-red. Miss Dai Buell, the musician, appeared in a becoming frock that combined the red with black in fetching manner, and took a place at the tea tables for the informal tea which followed the musical program.

(Photograph by Bachrach.)

MRS. ALVIN DODD, the former Catherine Filene, is a figure of much prominence in Washington, where she entertains brilliantly, gathering in her drawing-rooms many a distinguished company.

MRS. HENRY SAWYER, who presided over the tea urn, was very handsome in wrap and hat of black quite untouched by color of any sort. Mrs. Arthur Beale wore Florentine red, Mrs. George Hawley black with touches of blue and Mrs. Richard Hamlen Jones a costume of black and hat of pansy purple.

FLITTINGS TO the Southward are very much the order of smart society's days, and each moment, it seems, adds new names to the ever lengthening list. Mrs. Arthur L. Derby, the erstwhile Jeannette Barr, is going to New Orleans to renew old associations immediately after the Gastonia-Felton wedding takes place with Mrs. Derby as a bride's attendant.

AIKEN, THAT EXTREMELY smart Winter colony in the Carolina hills, is also on Mrs. Derby's itinerary. Aiken is, so to speak, a Winter rendezvous quite particularly of Boston flavor, having as it does so many eminent Bostonians as residents.

MRS. RONALD LYMAN is another Bostonian planning a late Winter stay at Aiken where life is charmingly informal, the cottage colony of the smartest and polo and allied sports hold high sway. It is at Aiken that some twenty-two thoroughbred steeplechasers are having a Winter training preparatory to the "Country Club" and other racemeetings.

WEDDING JOURNEY plans for Miss Hope Gaston when she shall have become Mrs. Cornelius Conway Felton in Trinity on Saturday next take her and Mr. Felton for a long honeymoon abroad, after which the Felton establishment will be set up in Boston, this a matter of much rejoicing to their hosts of friends.

MISS GASTON HAS but four attendants as her portion of the wedding pageant, but Mr. Felton will have a best man and a large corps of ushers, sixteen, no less, and altogether quite as important a coterie of young men as ever has graced a Boston ceremonial.

GORDON C. PRINCE and T. Jefferson Coolidge, Samuel L. Felton and E. C. Felton, Jr., Frederick S. Allen, Harold Amory, Harcourt Amory, William and John Gaston (brothers of the bride), Alexander Winsor and Ralph Earle all have places in the squad.

FOR THIS EVENING'S (or rather midnight's) dance and revel, staged by Repertory Theatre enthusiasts, there is an interesting list of reservations. "The Silver Forest," with its myriad attractions of the Midnight Frolic order (so firmly established in Manhattan's scheme of things social) appears to have found much Boston favor.

RESERVATIONS HAVE been made by Colonel Eben S. Draper, Harold Jefferson Coolidge, Andrew J. Peters, Mrs. Cyrus E. Dallin, Mrs. Louis E. Yoe, Mrs. Edwin Hukon James, Mrs. Follen Cabot, Wellington Wells, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rice and Dr. Morton Prince.

ADVANCE INFORMATION concerning this excursion into the night club field by the Repertory forces is rosy indeed, and includes announcement of brilliant divertissements, dancing, a 1 o'clock repast at a quaint little tavern and the presence of various stage stars to lend dash to the picture.

IN THE VANGUARD of the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio invasion comes that personage of the stage, Morris Gest, accompanied by Vladimir Nemirovi Dantchenko, both due this evening. It is expected that Madame Dantchenko will come to town with her illustrious husband to figure in the honors soon to be heaped on him.

OF COURSE, THERE is a social-official atmosphere over next Monday's opening of the Russian production which has caused quite a metropolitan furor. His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Fuller have a box for "Carmencita and the Soldier," and other box and stall holders are of like high importance. The Opera House will hold a notable company.

DALFOE JUNIORS WILL GIVE PROGRAM TONIGHT

The Dalfoe Juniors of Roxbury, an organization of young folks connected with the Roxbury Jewish Welfare Center, will conduct an entertainment tonight in the Practical Arts High School. A debate will feature a varied program. Judges for the debate are Bernard Ginsburg, Israel Ruby and Miss Sarah Cooperstock, president of the Senior League, Young Judea of Greater Boston. Victor Agranat is director of the Dalfoe Juniors, and will lead the debate.

Al Smith Saves Slayer

Albany, N. Y., March 4 (A.P.)—Governor Smith today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Anthony Pantano of Brooklyn, who was to have been executed at Sing Sing Prison tonight for killing two Brooklyn bank messengers in November, 1925.

$20,000 SALARY URGED FOR NEXT N. Y. GOVERNOR

Albany, N. Y., March 4 (A.P.)—A resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to fix the salary of the Governor of New York at not less than $20,000, instead of $10,000 he now receives was introduced in the Legislature today by Minority Leader Maurice Bloch. If adopted the amendment would not become effective until January 1, 1928, "so that there can be no question about the increase affecting the present executive."

COOLIDGE REFUSES TO HALT THE HANGMAN

Washington, March 4 (A.P.)—The case of Lieut. John S. Thompson, under death sentence in the Philippines, is closed so far as President Coolidge is concerned.

He has turned down another appeal for executive clemency made by the condemned man's father, Rev. J. Milton Thompson of Far Rockaway, N. Y.

Secretary Sanders, in a letter received today by the father, said the President did not see his way clear to re-open the case with a view possibly to commuting the sentence.

It is expected that Lieut. Thompson, found guilty by court martial of murdering Miss Audjey Burleigh at Manila last Spring, will be hanged soon after the action of the President in approving the sentence is receive by mail in the Philippines.

The same flattering exquisiteness you love in fine French soaps

This new "savon de toilette" is made by the very method France uses for her finest soaps

SATIN-smooth and glossy—you feel as though you had bought it in Paris, this exquisite new soap for your personal use!

So fine-textured, firm and lasting—ah! Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. Made quite differently from the white soaps you are used to. A real "savon de toilette"—that was what women asked us to make.

"We want a soap as delicious as fine French soap, but oh, not so high-priced," they told us. "Surely you can make it—you made our miraculous Lux."

So we made this new different toilet soap! Made it as the finest French soaps are made. Bubbling ready lather the instant you touch Lux Toilet Form to water—delicately fragrant, caressing! Leaving you with that delightful cared for feeling, that soft freshness, for which you used to pay absurd imported-soap prices! Intangible, but oh, so real! Somehow you feel lovelier just for using Lux Toilet Form. It is a true "savon de toilette."

Evanescent, delicious fragrance that a European perfume expert gave Lux Toilet Form—that illusive, half-sensed, half-dreamed sweetness that is irresistible! "Savon parfumé."

In its lavender and white wrapper, bewitching, immaculate, Lux Toilet Form is at your druggist's, your department store and your grocer's. All the family may use it for both toilet and bath—Lux Toilet Form lasts and lasts like imported soap. 10c. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Instant ample lather the moment it touches the water—men like that well-groomed feeling this new soap gives them

Delicate, delicious, at last here is a true "savon condensé" that you can use freely even for your deep delicious bath

ANOTHER OLD TIME DANCE

Old-time dancing folk will flock to the Strand Ballroom, No. 177 Huntington avenue, tonight for the fifth old-time dancing party.

Those who have attended the previous parties were loud in their praise of the new-old entertainment. Ardent devotees of the old-fashioned dances have decided to form a club to stage such dances regularly in the Strand Ballroom and make active war on jazz.

The orchestra is one well accustomed to the old order and the prompter and all other accessories will be on hand. Tom Brown or Henry Ford's prompter, will be there.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the winners in the glide waltz contest which is a big feature of the dancing parties.

PLEA OF MAN GOODWIN NAMED IN HIGH COURT

Arguments were made before the full bench of the Supreme Court on exceptions taken by Charles Friedman, who was found guilty in the Superior Criminal Court of buying, receiving and aiding in the concealment of a stolen automobile. A year's term in the House of Correction was stayed to await the decision of the Supreme Court.

Friedman claims that he was prejudiced in the eyes of the jury because of statements published in the newspapers by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, who, it is alleged, specifically named Friedman, calling him a thief and conspirator.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Godd Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also put about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

FEENEY FLAYS "PERJURERS" IN BOOZE CASE

ney, "and the light of Diogenes would go out."

Mayor Quigley, he said, had been tested by his neighbors, who deemed their opinion of his character by electing him to offices of responsibility in his home city.

"Don't be a Mayor," he warned the jurors. "Mayor Nichols in Boston was blamed for the snow and Mayor Quigley in Chelsea for the rum." There was no real evidence against any of the defendants, he declared.

Attorney Feeney solemnly advised the jurors if they ever had a choice of being indicted for murder or rum larceny to pick murder.

"I will show you in this conspiracy indictment," he thundered, "a situation which has never appeared in a criminal court in God Almighty's world."

He ridiculed the story of the unloading of a rum schooner in Chelsea and declared it existed only in "the diseased mind of poor Percy Friedman."

"Good God, men," shouted the lawyer, "where were the harbor authorities, the naval authorities and the city authorities? Were they all asleep while this three-masted schooner sailed brazenly up the harbor and tied up in Chelsea, remaining there twelve or fifteen hours?"

He referred to the character testimony of General Clarence R. Edwards in favor of Mayor Quigley, and added:

"When I heard that grand old warhorse testify here I thought to myself I would almost be willing to be indicted and maligned as Quigley was could I have such a recommendation from such a man.

"There is not a man on this jury who can prove a better reputation. There is not a judge on the bench who could offer proof of a stronger reputation, and yet we will probably be told that good character cannot stand in preference to a Friedman, a Katz or a Louden.

"What is the use of being honest in your business? What is the use of working for others? What is the use of having a character if it can be so easily destroyed from the mouth of a self-confessed crook?"

In his argument Attorney Feeney said:

"Gentlemen of the jury: Your final duty in this case is to return an honest verdict, a fearless verdict, a verdict in accordance with law and fact. A just, fearless, honest verdict can be based only on honest testimony, and an honest verdict can only be based on an honest witness, only upon trustworthy testimony.

"Every important witness for the United States in this case is not only an accomplice and a crook, but he is also, on his own testimony, guilty of the crime of bribery, every one of them.

SAYS WITNESSES "LIED"

"Further, every one of these important witnesses is a self-confessed perjurer and, outside of murder, that is the nastiest crime that man may be guilty of.

"And every important witness has been tried in these courts on a charge identical with this. They pleaded not guilty and went upon the witness stand and testified as to the respectability of their business. They lied in the first instance under oath and they lied here in this issue under oath.

"I am reminded of the oft-repeated line Duther and his statement, 'You can't prove the happenings in hell by testimony of the angels in heaven.' Before considering the evidence in this case let me again call your attention to the safe guards our country throws around its citizens.

"Before a man may be legally convicted by a jury the evidence in the case must convince a fair jury of the defendants' guilt beyond all reasonable doubt, and the highest courts have said in regards to reasonable doubt: 'A reasonable doubt is that state of the case, which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in that condition, that they cannot say they feel an abiding conviction, to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge. The burden of proof is upon the prosecutor.

CAUTIONS THE JURYMEN.

"All the presumptions of law independent of evidence are in favor of innocence; and every person is presumed to be innocent until he is proved guilty. If upon such proof there is a reasonable doubt remaining, the accused is entitled to the benefit of it by an acquittal."

Referring to the testimony of the accomplices, as he alleged in his opening remarks, Feeney here said that the courts of this State have said, "The testimony of an accomplice is not to be taken as that of an ordinary citizen of good character in the case where testimony is supposed to be correct.

"On the contrary, the evidence of an accomplice ought to be received with [illegible] and ought not to be passed upon [illegible] except with the most care and caution, and ought not to be passed upon [illegible] with the same rules governing other and apparently creditable witnesses.

"While there is no rule which applies to the United States court to the effect that the testimony of an accomplice is not sufficient to warrant a conviction unless corroborated, nevertheless you are cautioned again[illegible] placing too much reliance upon the testimony of accomplices, and it is the safer practice to acquit the defendant unless there is such corroborating testimony.

"In this case, gentlemen, the office of the United States Attorney has turned over American citizens to the Goldmans and Katzes of Chicago, and they have violated every act of decency.

"You have heard in the testimony that witnesses for the government were summoned by due process of law to appear at the office of the United States Attorney. I defy U. S. Attorney Williams to show me any act of Congress or any law by which a man may be summoned into his office.

"When these witnesses went to the office of the U. S. Attorney they did not see Mr. Williams, nor his assistant, Mr. Thompson. They saw Katz and Goldman only. Thompson in his opening relied too much on the information gained from witnesses in the back room.

"Mr. Foreman, if you ever have a choice of being indicted for murder or conspiracy, pick murder.

DEFENSE IN DILEMMA.

"I will show you in this conspiracy indictment a situation which has never appeared in a criminal court in God Almighty's world.

"The indictments charge that on the night of July 2, 1922, liquor was landed at a public landing in Winthrop. Thompson, in his opening, also said this landing took place in July, 1922, and that indictment was signed by Harold Williams.

"The defense faced a dilemma. There were no dates, no bill of particulars from the U. S. Attorney that were satisfactory to the defendants.

Attorney Feeney referred to the testimony of Percy Friedman concerning the unloading of an alleged three-masted schooner at the Front street wharf in Chelsea.

"If Percy Friedman's testimony was true the government could have brought in 1,000 good citizens and reputable witnesses to testify to it. You heard the testimony of Friedman.

"I venture my life that no two men of you can agree where Friedman said that three-master was tied up. Was it there? Is Boston harbor so unprotected that ships can come in and go out without anybody knowing anything about it? Is thereno harbor master? No naval authorities? No other officials?

SCORES FRIEDMAN.

"Good God, men, were they all asleep while this three-master sailed up the stream and tied up at this wharf or any wharf and remained there from twelve to fifteen hours? Wouldn't somebody representing the United States government know something about this ship being there?

"It's absurd. It never happened. They didn't have credible witnesses come in here and testify to that because it only existed in the diseased mind of Friedman, and it was only there that he might tell it to help himself!

"In Massachusetts and the United States so weak that a vessel such as has been described here could come and tie up to a wharf and that only a crook and a criminal should know about it? Shame on the United States and shame on Massachusetts if such were the facts. But it isn't the fact!

"How deep downf into hell will they go, these gentlemen here, the Goldmans, the Katzes and the Stones, to destroy the reputation of a man like Mayor Quigley?

"When I heard General Edwards, that great old warhorse, testify, I thought to myself: 'I would almost be willing to be indicted and maligned as Quigley was could I have had such a recommendation from such a man.

"There is not a man on this jury who can prove a better reputation. There is not a judge on the bench who could offer proof of a stronger reputation, and yet we will probably be told that good character can not stand in preference to a Freidman, a Katz or a London.

"What is the use of being honest in your business? What is the use of working for others? What is the use of having a character if it can be so easily destroyed from the mouth of a self-confessed crook?"

"NO PLACE FOR RUM-GENESSE"

"Don't be carred away by manufactured atmosphere or by a hue and cry. Weigh the evidence. Don't ever be a mayor! I have been through the mill. Don't ever be a mayor if you can be a fence-keeper, a pound-keeper or keeper of the poorhouse.

"Just as Nichols was blamed for Boston snow, so Quigley has been blamed for the rum in Chelsea.

"You, gentlemen, remember the cute little Mrs. Berger on the stand. I felt out of place when little Stone asked her if she had ever seen the mayor and she replied, 'I thought that answer would come under another question.'

"I say to you, gentlemen, that if Muenchausen and Ananias were alive in 1926 they would meet with active competition here. I have read of Diogenes in his nightshirt looking with a lantern, for an honest man Turn him loose on the government witnesses here and his light would go out.

"We put the defendants on the witness stand and observe the striking contrast. That witness stand, gentlemen, is safe only for a man who is either frank and innocent or for a convict.

"It was safe for Friedman and it was safe for the defendants. When a man takes the witness stand he leaves himself open to the introduction of any and all records of criminal conviction against him to impeach his credibility.

"You know that no man can go on the police force or be put on a Civil Service list if he has ever been convicted of crime. Knowing that we put Chelsea policemen on the stand. I am convinced Walter A. Barden stands before you today as an efficient and honest police man against whom no slanderous word was ever mentioned except out of the lips of a convict or defendant awaiting sentence.

"NOTHING" ON QUIGLEYS.

"All the evidence against him here was that some woman came here and said he used to tell her to get her liquor out of the way before a raid and what Friedman testified when he said he saw him down near the Metropolitan Garage. They want you to convict him on that alone.

"Not one witness has been produced by the government to show that he ever received a cent of money. Not one of the witnesses we have put on has ever been in a courtroom before, and not one of them in any instance has been impeached upon the witness stand.

"Tom Quigley went on the stand and submitted himself for cross-examination. I notified the government in my opening that he would take the stand, and I thereby challenged them to cross-examine him to their hearts' content. What did they do? Not a thing! They sought and searched for corroboration, but they did not get it.

"Then they said, 'Wait till Mayor Quigley takes the stand.'

"The gentleman of the fourth estate anticipated his examination with glee, for they said, 'Now we will get the story of this conspiracy.'

"I look sick on the day the Mayor had all but finished his direct testimony and the government had almost a week in which to prepare to cross-examine him. For months Katz and Stone and Goldman had prepared the case—and what happened when he took the stand? Nothing.

"There was no word of Mayor Quigley or Tom Quigley in rebuttal.

"IN CLUTCHES OF AGENTS."

Concerning the presence on the stand of Berger and others who had been found guilty of violations of the liquor laws, Attorney Feeney said they were always in the clutches of Goldman, Katz and Stone. He continued:

"They testified that had [illegible] favors and expected better favors in the future. It was [illegible]ace that Berger was arrested for selling rum, and that he gave Stone's brother $1,800, and I tell you, gentlemen, that these important government witnesses had a right to believe that they could expect favors from Mr. Stone and his cohorts.

"Stone's brother is right here in Boston. Why wasn't he brought here to take the stand?

"Why didn't he say that the story is false? No, gentlemen. The story is true. That's why he wasn't brought here. Very rarely have I been accused of criticizing opposing counsel in a case, but a man who is trying a case and who shirks from his duty is as arrant a coward as he who flees from the enemy in time of war. Red-blooded men would have given the story the lie."

MADE "GOAT OF EDDIE."

Attorney Frederick Sheenan here handed Mr. Feeney a piece of paper and Attorney Feeney said:

"My assistant here sees that I haven't mentioned anything about Eddie Carlon, and Neddo Keefe, and Harry Murphy.

"Well, gentlemen, there's no use of my repeating what I have already concerning the witnesses who have testified against the defendants. But about Eddie Carlon, Eddie was the Mayor's friend. They had to make a goat out of somebody, and naturally they picked on Eddie.

"About Harry Murphy. Friedman said he rode in the Mayor's car. Terrible. Awful. Ned O'Keefe. Another friend of the Mayor; and he, of course had to be a goat.

"You're not going to make goats out of them. The time has come now when you are going to say that you're not satisfied with all this evidence beyond a reasonable doubt."

With the conclusion of Attorney Feeney's plea, U. S. Attorney Williams began his closing argument for the government. He said he intended to go over in detail the evidence, and in doing so to make a resume

FOR Sour Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion, or sour acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25c BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty-cent bottles, any druggistore.

Doctors Prescribed It Long Before the Public Knew It

LONG before the general public knew the virtues and effectiveness of Gude's Pepto-Mangan, it was prescribed by hundreds of physicians to patients in need of a good tonic. Since its introduction to the public, doctors still prescribe it. The fact that it has had the confidence of the medical profession for over 33 years is the best proof that it is a quick and efficient iron tonic.

But Gude's Pepto-Mangan is more than an ordinary iron tonic, for with the iron there is scientifically combined manganese and predigested albumin, the value of which is well known to physicians.

What Doctors Write

"I have been prescribing Gude's Pepto-Mangan now for quite a number of years... I have always found it a valuable tonic and the extremely pleasant and palatable form in which Pepto-Mangan is prepared, combined with its easy assimilation, has rendered it invaluable to me in my practice."

"I have had results in simple Anemia with Pepto-Mangan and am recommending it to all my patients."

"I have used it for 15 years with always the most uniform good results."

Read what doctors write—then you will have fullest confidence in the prompt and undoubted tonic power of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. At all druggists in either liquid or tablet form.

FEENEY LASHES WITNESSES IN HIS CLOSING PLEA

of the 1,700 or 1,800 pages of testimony that have gone in.

"I will not discuss with you the law relating to conspiracy. That is the duty of the judge alone, and any further discussion of it might confuse you," he said.

THE GOVERNMENT'S CASE.

"Sufficient for the time being it is to tell you that conspiracy is the joint action of two or more individuals towards a preconceived result. Conspiracy may be tacit, and the conspirators may not know the names of the others, but each and every one of them, in the eyes of the law, are conspirators.

"The government alleges the existence of a conspiracy between the officials of the city of Chelsea to violate the Volstead Act, either by manufacturing, transporting, possessing or selling intoxicating liquors.

"This conspiracy does not involve the underhanders making or selling the liquor, but involves the acts of officers concerning the control of liquor traffic. The government must convince you gentlemen beyond all reasonable doubt that these men are guilty."

POLICE NET SET FOR 'WHITE SLAVERS'

Fitchburg, March 4.—The drawstrings of a police net are being tightened about a roadside inn near Gardner in the effort to trap men and women members of a white slave ring.

The ramifications of the ring, which the police say are limitless, were disclosed with the arrest of Edward W. Hutt, claimed as husband by two women.

It is said that seven other young women are involved in Hutt's story and Federal, State and local authorities are today combing this section for more evidence of white slavery.

A conference was held by the authorities today.

Hutt's arrest and the concurrent investigation revealed the existence of questionable houses in Fitchburg, Gardner, Athol, Ashburnham, Templeton and Phillipson and other towns, according to Police Chief Davis of Ashburnham.

WALES WAS 5TH, AND HE STAYED ON HORSE

London, March 4 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales competed in the Welsh Guards point to point race at Beaufort Hunt today, but was only able to finish fifth, completing the difficult course of two and a half miles without mishap. Major Ruper Lewis won the event.

SAYS BALMWORT IS QUICK---SURE

The following is typical of thousands who have expressed extreme satisfaction at the quick, mild, balmy action of Balmwort tablets: "I was troubled with my kidneys and bladder so bad I could only work a few hours a day. At night was up and down 3 to 4 times, and in the morning could hardly bend over to dress myself. I took one box of Balmwort tablets and never have been troubled since. Also have recommended to others and they have found relief, etc."

CURLEY BITTER IN TALK ABOUT HUB AFFAIRS

Enthusiastic over Florida, sarcastic over snow removal under the Nichols administration, grieved because of the failure of thei ncurable hospital project and angered over thed itching of the new L street bathhouse, former Mayor Curley talked a bit today to the Boston Evening American

"Had Joseph Rourke been commissioner of public works during the Winter storms," said the ex-Mayor, "the only question he would have considered would have been the removal of snow without depending on the public works department of Heaven to remove the snow with sun and rain."

BATH PLAN 7 YEARS OLD.

On the L street bathhouse, he declared that the best health-giving institution outside of a hospital was menaced by fire if the new fireproof building is not erected.

"The project is not new," he said. "Plans were made seven years ago by the Peters administration and were perfected during mine. In the event of fire in the old bathhouse thousands of people will be deprived of the opportunity for health and enjoyment."

Like a true real estate salesman he talked in flowery fashion on Florida and said he was affiliated with a Boston concern in booming the Villa Rica development, twenty-three miles south of Palm Beach and forty nort hf Miami.

HOSPITAL PROJECT.

The ditching of the incurable-hospital project as the result of the court decision declaring the city council junket illegal, will be a distinct loss to Boston, he said.

It had been the intention to transfer the Long Island Hospital patients to the new place on Parker Hill, where student physicians could treat them, with a chance that patients might benefit.

WORCESTER MINISTERS VOTE TO ADMIT RABBI

Worcester, March 4 (A.P.).—Rabbi Maurice M. Mazure of Temple Emanuel, is to be formally invited to become a member of Worcester Ministers Union, according to a statement made today by Rev. Robert M. Gray, president, who stated that this decision was made at a meeting of the union on Monday. It was further voted that the constitution be amended so as to eliminate any phraseology that might be objectionable to the rabbi.

Use Lemons Tonight

To Stop That Cold

As soon as you begin to sneeze—as soon as you suspect a cold—take a hot bath and hot lemonade and get into a warm bed. Keep well covered.

Do that tonight if you feel chilly now. You'll perspire and the cold will come out with the perspiration. In nine cases out of ten, if you act at once, all traces of your cold will be gone in the morning.

In all epidemics like the "flu," thousands of extra carloads of lemons are used because millions know this old-fashioned, time-tried remedy for colds.

This is the best way to treat children's colds also.

It saves the days of time and the money that colds always cost once they take hold.

But "get" them before they do take hold—you can do it with hot lemonade if you take the drink in time.

Use California lemons. They are rich in acid juice—the best kind for colds. Just squeeze the juice of one lemon in glass or cup of hot water. The effectiveness of hot lemonade is due to more than its heat. Add sugar if desired.

Don't have a cold tomorrow. Take hot lemonade tonight.

Another Treat

Morris Gest brings another stupendous production to the Boston Opera House next week.

GEST HERE WITH STUDIO HEAD

Morris Gest, producer of "The Miracle," returns to Boston today, accompanied by Vladimir Nemirovitch-Dantchenko, founder with Stanislavsky of the Moscow Art Theatre and director of the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio, which Mr. Gest is presenting at the Boston Opera House for one week, beginning with a gala premiere of "Carmencita and the Soldier," on Monday evening, March 8.

After a successful 12-week New York engagement, Boston is the first stopping place on the brief tour, which includes Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The two most significant as well as most popular plays of the repertory, "Carmencita and the Soldier," a new version of Rimsk's "Carmen," and "Lysistrata," Aristophanes' comedy of sex and war, will be presented on tour, with the personnel and production traveling intact.

Vladimir Nemirovitch-Dantchenko, founder and director of the Musical Studio, whom Mr. Gest will introduce to Bostonians at a luncheon to be given in their honor on Friday by the Women's City Club, is one of the world's foremost men of the theatre.

'QUEER' MONEY FLOOD HERE

Agents of the U. S. Secret Service in Boston have discovered a flood of counterfeit $5 bills in circulation in Somerville, Cambridge and outlying suburban districts.

The counterfeits, according to the investigators, are on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

They are of poor workmanship, bear a portrait of Lincoln, with the check letters "A" and "2D" and the plate number 1376.

ARMED THUGS ROB MAN; FLEE WITH 45 CENTS

Ralph Holden of Mystic street, East Somerville, reported to the Somerville police today that he was held up on his way to work in a bakery by two young men at Mystic avenue and Austin street. One of the thugs levelled a gun at his head while an accomplice frisked him. They received 45 cents for their trouble.

5-YEAR NAVY AIR PLAN TO GET COOLIDGE'S O. K.

Washington, March 4 (A.P.).—After a visit to the White House today, Chairman Morin of the House military committee indicated President Coolidge would approve legislation carrying out the five-year aircraft program submitted by the War Department. Mr. Morin said he would have ready for introduction tomorrow a bill to carry out the aviation program, which would provide re-establishment of the council of national defence, which functioned during the World War.

Don't dope YOUR Cough

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, as most cough mixtures do, but this is not enough.

The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germ-laden mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery.

PERTUSSIN assists Nature to accomplish these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.

NO 'LEAK' SEEN BY EASTMAN ON MERGER

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, popular member from Massachusetts, commenting on reports that there had been a "leak" on the Nickel Plate merger, stated that in his opinion Joe, B. Eastman there was no truth to such reports. Mr. Eastman's statement, it will be observed, is offered as a personal opinion and not necessarily as a statement of fact. It is regrettable that so many opportunities present themselves for a "leak" on important government decisions—in cotton reports the "leaks" at one time looked so far-reaching as to be comparable to a flood!

Aside from his levels, a chief factor in depressing stock prices the past two days is one amiabat which we warned the New York Stock Exchange against emphatically last October 26 in this column. We urged the installation of twin tickers to enable the reporting in the volume of sales, either dividing the stock list into groups or by splitting it alphabetically.

* * *

We warned the New York Stock Exchange authorities at that time that, if twin tickers were not installed, the time would soon come when inaction would be rued. In very late trading Tuesday and Wednesday the bear factions were enabled to operate with ease because they were putting across transactions in a volume which they knew the tickers could not handle. All sorts of rumors were around about the difference between real prices and ticker quotations, calculated to start a panic among the timid.

* * *

We still protest against the inadequacy of ticker service, and urge that something constructive be done about it at once.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Akron, O., March 4.—Employers throughout the country could learn much from America's leading rubber manufacturers. They have had no strike worth mentioning in more than a dozen years.

How do they do it?

For one thing, nearly all the workers are paid by piece. They earn good wages. The main class of first-class workers average $1,500 for eight-hours' work, minus a brief period for lunch—rubber factories are operated 24 hours a day.

The reason high wages can be paid without bringing about high prices is that phenomenal progress has been made during the past decade, and especially during the last five years, in installing new rubber-saving machinery, in devising improved processes and in increasing efficiency all round. Two workers today can produce more than three produced a few years ago.

Thus it has been possible to reduce the cost of tires very substantially during these recent years when the cost of almost everything else has risen sharply.

All this implies capable management.

So well have Akron rubber manufacturers treated their people that union organizers have not been able to make any headway. The leading companies have taken pains to cooperate with the workers in organizing proper plans for electing employe representatives to meet representatives of the management to discuss working conditions, etc.

* * *

How manufacturers strive to spread employment over the dull months of the year will be told later.

MOTHER OF 2, FATHER OF 4, MISSING

Wife Tells Police East Boston Man Sold Home, Gave Her $1,000, Vanished

Police of a hundred cities and towns are seeking an East Boston man and a woman who disappeared at the same time.

In East Boston Mrs. Vincenza Tomei and the four Tomei children are praying for the return of the husband and father, Giuseppe Tomei, while Francesco Di Piore and his two children mourn the absence of the wife and mother Marie Di Fiore. Both disappeared Monday.

Mrs. Tomei told the police her husband had sold their home at No. 10 Pope street, gave her $1,000, and then disappeared.

CLEAR WAY FOR TWIN STORK

North Adams, March 4 (A.P.)—Thirty men, with six horses worked four hours during the night clearing a five-mile stretch of snow blocked highway in order to get Mrs. William Russell of Readsboro, Vt. to the North Adams Hospital, where she gave birth to twin sons.

One of the twins died. The other and mother are expected to live.

CHAMBER PROTESTS ARMISTICE HOLIDAY

Directors of The Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce in a letter to the heads of the State Senate and House today protested against making Armistice Day a holiday. They said business is already heavily burdened with expense from overhead and lost business resulting from existing holidays. The letter added there was a feeling prevalent that a patriotic observance of the day would be more in keeping with the proper spirit of the occasion if not supported by characteristic exhibitions which appear to have become inseparable from most of the other holidays.

HUB SHIP, MISSING TWO MONTHS, LISTED AS 'LOST'

After two months of anxious waiting the three-masted Boston schooner Abbie S. Walker has finally been given up for lost and the insurance on the vessel and her cargo of lumber paid. The schooner left Tarmouth N. S. in December, with a cargo of hardwood for the Shawsheen Lumber Company of this city. Subsequently she was forced into Winter Bay by hard weather, and early in January again set sail for Boston. Captain Arthur Ogilvie and his crew of three are listed as lost.

About "Ben Hur"
Real Love Story
New Standards
Here and There
For the Millions

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WELL turned phrases make business; gymnastics are not always of the legs, arms and torso. As an example, there is that gem among automobile advertisements: "When better cars are made Complex will make them." Linking motorcars with the cinema, which isn't ordinarily done in good society, let it be said right here that when better films are made "Ben Hur" still will be the drum-major at the head of the procession. For, no matter how you view it, 'Ben Hur" will continue for some time to come as the Gargantuan achievement in picture production.

OVER a stretch of twenty-five years, or more, "Ben Hur" has been a magic name with thinking folk. First, as a novel, this absorbing story of early Christianity stirred the classes and the masses. General Lew Wallace, a good Union soldier in the Civil War and an ardent Christian of rare vision, wrote "Ben Hur" out of a heart filled with genuine love for all mankind. A gentle soul, yes—and a darned good soldier, for he and his legions were all that stood between Jubal Early's invading hordes and the city of Washington in the dying days of Autumn, 1864.

"BEN HUR" must, naturally, take its place among the literary masterpieces of this and the preceding century. A great story beautifully told. Then by the grace of Abraham L. Erlanger, whose views of life and the beauties of a real drama are still in good working order, "Ben Hur" hooked arms with the theatre and became the enduring flower of the generation. For the inspiring film presentation of "Ben Hur," now on view at the Colonial, we must doff the hat and make low obeisance to the same shrine. Erlanger brought "Ben Hur" to thousands of playgoers; the same Erlanger now brings "Ben Hur" to the untold millions.

ENOUGH of Erlanger, the soul back of all the beauties revealed on the cold screen at the Colonial. Let's view the picture. Just as Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" set up a new standard of picture making two decades ago, "Ben Hur" now creates new and more bewildering interest in what possibly is the century's greatest drama. We are told that millions were spent to make "Ben Hur" the greatest picture of all time. The money was not wasted. Spectacles come and go in pictures, but no imagination could possibly conceive of anything more thrilling than the sea fight between the Roman galleys and the Greek pirates, or more stirring than the magnificent chariot races.

PICTURES are merely reflections of events—great or small. The picturized "Ben Hur" is much more than a reflection—it is the real thing thrown straight across your vision. The film reproduces action in new and unmeasured qualities; a love story is unfolded as neither book nor stage could paint it. "Ben Hur" is both picture and spectacle; it is life's most beautiful religion laid down in complete simplicity and with perfect understanding. That is "Ben Hur"—a picture for the ages.

attack, which is not pleasant reading in this prosperous republic. We are doing pretty well here; industrialists are not exactly starving to death. They should warn the Passaic idiots against upsetting the apple cart. Employers have considerable more to lose than employes in the game of violence.

MRS. WALTER NEIGRAN, of Brooklyn, did not get yesterday's Wall Street closing prices. The market closes at three. Wall Street editions were delayed an hour, trying to catch up. And Mrs. Neigran turned on the gas with her two children, one two years, one six weeks old, before noon.

She wrote to her husband "Forgive me, I could not help it. I am weak. My last wish, let me rest with the babies. Your loving wife, Rose."

THERE WAS no coal in the house, nothing to eat. The husband was out looking for work, and it was hard to nurse the baby with no little food. Rose's sister says: "She loved her husband and children. The struggle must have been too much for her when she was so weak."

That story may comfort those that bought Hudson Motor at 124 and sold yesterday at 106.

NINE MORE Catholic priests have been expelled from Mexico, and the French authorities order all images of Christ removed from public hospitals.

Mexico's expulsion of priests will increase the strength of the Catholic Church there.

The action of French authorities will diminish many women's and children's chances of recovery. There is no medicine as powerful to lift, and many a poor soul has struggled back to health comforted by the thought, "He died on the Cross for me." That may be superstition to the modernist, but it's a fact.

A SOLEMN WASHINGTON dispatch says the President and Cabinet discussed the Wall Street scare, and "President Coolidge let it be known that he felt there was nothing taking place in the business world symptomatic of a letup in the present prosperity."

The trouble is just "nervous prosperity" among some of the gamblers, afraid of their own profits.

The revised income tax rate will bring hundreds of millions out of the income tax-proof, non-taxable securities, and business will boom more than ever.

Some day we shall have to pay for that war and our share in it; that's natural. Years ago,

DOCTOR JAILED FOR TAXES

Dr. Daniel T. Parnach of Moody street, Waltham, was arrested and held today for alleged non-payment of his 1921 state income tax of $134 which has mounted now with costs to $146. The arrest was on a writ of execution sent to the State commissioner of Taxation Henry F. Long. It served by Constable Warren A. Brown. Dr. Parnach was lodged in the East Cambridge jail.

CHURCHES ARE AGAINST SCHOOL MILITARY DRILL

A resolution advocating abolishment of compulsory military training in schools and colleges and opposing preparation for any campaign was sent to the adjutant general in Washington today by the executive committee of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches.

We believe the use of training camps of the organization in the interest of Massachusetts supports the sentiment of the resolution," it was decided by the Rev. H. Tal Lasher, secretary of the organization, in referring to the resolution. Adjutant General Robert C. Davis recently sent out an inquiry concerning compulsory military training in schools and the result was in reply to that inquiry the resolution was passed on Tuesday after the committees had considered the inquiry.

JAIL TERM FOR CHELSEA MAN

George Wasmenty, former defendant in the Chelsea ring conspiracy trial, found not guilty by a directed verdict yesterday, was given an 18-months sentence and as a result of a decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, he had been taken to Wennesan, Sam Zezzel, 21, Leroy Segal, whose conviction of a federal jury last year in the district which had appealed the case to the circuit court of appeals, were found not guilty by directed verdicts. The others were Leo Cohen, Harry Cohen and Lewis Segal, Henry.

CUSTOMS COLLECTIONS JUMP IN FEBRUARY

Though the value of goods reported into the Massachusetts customs district showed a decline during February over the same month of a year ago the duties only to showed an increase. According to figures compiled by Collector Malkin appraised to $4,547,697 last month as against $4,101,576 in February of last year. Imports for the same period were valued at $39,479,194 as against $35,749,592 a year ago.

FIREMEN OF TWO CITIES FIGHT BLAZE AT TUFTS

Bean Hall dormitory and gymnasium building at Tufts College housing more than 50 students, was damaged by fire today that started in a wall next to the room of Edward French, a student. All were at class at the time. The dormitory is situated near the Somerville line and an alarm was turned in to the Somerville department. At the same time a telephone message summoned the Medford department. The fire caused $500 damage. It is believed to have been caused by defective wiring.

A PIRATE of HEARTS

The Love Story of a Boston Girl Who Wants Only One Man---and the Husband Who Strayed

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to Randall Phelps for a year, when he asks her to break their engagement. He tells her that he has fallen in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heart-broken, Sylvia gives him up, greatly to the satisfaction of her AUNT AGNES ("Aunt Agony"), who has brought her up. Aunt Agony insists that Ranny is a lazy good-for-nothing, and advises her niece to marry PETER WILK, a well-to-do bachelor, several years older than the girl.

"I must be dreaming," Sylvia would think when Ranny fondled her.

As the time draws near for the June wedding of Fay and Ranny, Fay seems less and less eager for the marriage. She admits to Sylvia that she and Ranny don't care so much for each other as they once thought they did. And Sylvia discovers that she is secretly seeing a great deal of EDDIE CARTER, a former sweetheart of hers.

On the 10th day of May, which is Sylvia's twenty-second birthday, Peter gives a picnic supper for her. Fay and Ranny, slightly tipsy, arrive late.

The crowd part to play hide-and-seek, like children, in the dark woods; and Sylvia, during the course of the evening, finds herself alone with Ranny. He tells her that he and Fay have made up their minds that they don't love each other, and says that he never really cared for anyone but Sylvia, and she recklessly suggests that they run away together that night and be married. So they do. They spend all night sitting in Ranny's car, and in the morning they get a license and are married; and they begin their honeymoon at a little country inn.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER VIII

THEY were wonderfully happy for that first week of their honeymoon in George's Mills, by Lake Sunapee, in the New Hampshire hills.

Ranny was in love with Sylvia as she had never dreamed he could be in love with any woman. She had always thought that most of the love was on her side.

But now he seemed to hate to let her out of his sight. He would lie for hours with his head in her lap while she read to him and stroked his hair with her fingers.

When they went on walks he would stop suddenly and take her in his arms, crushing her to him until she ached. His hand would find hers under the tablecloth when they sat waiting for their meals in the quaint little dining room of Russell's Inn. Deep silences would come between them—silences that thundered their love to each other.

"I must be dreaming—I'm so happy!" Sylvia would think to herself sometimes when Ranny fondled her. And she would raise her left hand to see if she really had a wedding ring—to make sure that she really was Ranny's wife.

At the end of the first week a letter came from Aunt Agony.

"My dear child," she wrote, "I think you have made a terrible mistake. But if you really care for Randall Phelps (although I don't see how you can, after the way he has treated you) I am glad for you. And I hope you will always be happy. However, if anything does come up just remember that your aunt has always taken care of you and always will, if the need arises—and a friend in need is a friend indeed."

"Affectionately, your aunt,
"AGNES STARR."

Sylvia hid the letter from Ranny, but he found it one morning when he was rummaging in her things, hunting for a nail file.

"Well, the old girl thinks a lot of me, doesn't she?" he observed.

FAMILIES IN CAMBRIDGE AND HYDE PARK FLEE FIRE

Four families were driven to the street today by fires in Hyde Park and Cambridge.

Three families fled a blaze in the apartment house at Nos. 3, 5, and 7 Sherman street, Cambridge.

John McMahon and family were driven out of the first floor, George Vidrou and family from the second floor, and the family of Harold Marks from the third floor.

Fire in the two-story dwelling at No. 27 Fulton street, Hyde Park, forced the family of Anthony Chadbreck to flee in scanty clothing.

Two Fall Off Icy Ladders at Fire in Sharon

FIREMAN'S LEG SNAPS IN CRASH

Family Flees In Cold as Home Burns; One Man Hurt in Hudson Blaze

Two Walpole firemen were injured today when they fell from ice-coated ladders as they were fighting the flames which destroyed the farmhouse of Max Rodman on Pine street, Sharon.

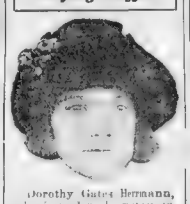
Fireman Chester L. Donnell lost his old when near the top of the ladder and broke his leg in the fall. Lieutenant John Bixby, who followed up the ladder after Donnell had fallen, himself fell and suffered a sprained ankle.

The Rodman family, including three children, all escaped the flames, but they took with them little clothing and were compelled to cross the fields in near-zero weather to the home of a neighbor.

While the fire was actually within the limits of Sharon, it was the Walpole department that fought the flames from 2 o'clock until 6 today.

The Sharon apparatus was forced to go all the way round through Foxboro because many of the roads were passable. The loss was estimated by Rodman at $10,000.

Praying Hugger



Dorothy Gates Hermann, who is under observation in Bellevue Hospital, New York, after having hugged several men on Broadway while she exhorted them to pray.

GIVES RELIGION WITH CARESS

New York, March 4 (INS)—Dorothy Gates Hermann, Peoria girl and ex-wife of Philip Hermann, son of a wealthy contractor, is under observation at Bellevue hospital, where she was committed Wednesday after having been arrested on Broadway while she was exhorting passers-by to pray.

According to the police, Mrs. Hermann, on her arrest, kissed the cheek of an automobile salesman, who was trying to escape when she was interrupted by a patrolman.

She is said to have fought the policeman for some time before being subdued.

Fire in Danger Zone in Chelsea

Fire which started near the place where the Chelsea fire originated in 1908 swept through the O. K. Shank Company at Carter and Fourth streets, Chelsea, early today.

As the fire was in the danger zone, many pieces of apparatus were called out by the first alarm. As soon as the fire officials arrived on the scene they turned in a second alarm, causing Everett and Revere to send assistance.

The loss is estimated at $20,000. The flames spread, despite the efforts of the firemen to the Pope & Cottle Lumber Company, which is on Fourth street.

The Atwood & McManus factory was threatened by the flames and firemen created their efforts to prevent the further spread of the flames to this structure.

The fire is in the centre of what is called Chelsea's fire zone and an extra amount of apparatus is out to answer every call that comes from this district.

The blaze is believed to have started in the boiler room of the O. K. Shank Company, which is located in a three-story wooden building.

FUGITIVE IN HOLE FOR MONTH

Night Raid on a St. Albans Home Traps Canadian Deportee

St. Albans, Vt., March 4 (A. P.).—A secret compartment in the wall of his mother's home here which had saved him from arrest for a month failed Hildreth Jones when immigration inspectors and local police made a surprise raid last night. Today Jones was in Franklin County Jail awaiting deportation as an undesirable alien.

In November Jones, who has served terms in several American prisons, was paroled from the State Prison at Windsor on condition that he would leave the country. He came to the home here of his mother, Mrs. Mary Jones, and for a month the authorities had been searching for him.

His hiding place was a cleverly contrived niche in a wall, protected by a sliding panel. When the panel was drawn the wallpaper appeared unbroken.

Last night three immigration inspectors and two police officers entered the house before warning could be given, and Jones was caught.

He told the officers he had gone abroad only at night, and then in woman's garb, spending the daylight hours in hiding. Jones' record is now that he served a term in New York State Prison for arson. I was engaged in serving a two-year sentence for a similar offense when paroled.

He will be deported to Canada where he was born.

ONE HURT IN $25,000 FIRE AT HUDSON FEAST

Hudson, March 4—One fireman was overcome by smoke, a bank and two stores were burned out and members of the Hudson Aerie of Eagles assembled for a meeting and banquet, were forced to flee their quarters when fire swept through the first floor of the three-story Jeffs Block on Main street.

Loss was estimated by the fire department officials at $ 25,000.

Peter M. Courtemanche was over-come while fighting the fire and was carried out by other firemen.

TANKER ABLAZE AND VICTIM DIES OF BURNS

Port Colborne, March 4—Roy Farnham, town's fourth fireman on the job today, died in the Rhode Island Hospital from burns received when a barrel of fire from the fire box swept over him, setting the tanker afire and threatening to ignite the fuel oil tanks and blow up the vessel.

Fallen firemen stopped Farnham's blazing clothing from burning and dazed fire and engine crews until they sighted a man-of-war approaching to give assistance.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

REGISTERED UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE

by Marie Queen of Roumania

DO WHAT YOU LOVE BEST

YOU may protest that this advice is too cheap—that it is not practical and serviceable. Must we not all do what we have to do, whether we love it or not? Are we not victims of duty, circumstances, environment and fortune good or bad?

Yes, no doubt.

I do not, of course, mean that you must desire the impossible—want to open Parliament when you are a bootblack, to be president of a ladies' club when your profession is tight rope dancing, to be a waiter when you are a King, or Paderewski when the best your hand can do is scramble eggs.

What I mean is that nearly every one of us, alongside his duties, has some hobby, some talent, some avocation which he likes, and generally what one loves doing, one does well. I encourage your hobby, ride it as far as you can. You may be surprised one day to find you have won in a most surprising race.

If you have children and discover in them some special inclination, foster it, make sacrifices that the child may develop his gift and make his lifework the thing he loves best.

Some parents have a curious tendency to forcing their children into what they themselves want them to do, not what the child wishes. How many bad statesmen have thus been made from excellent cooks! How many farmers have gnarled their lives away who might have written books!

It has happened to me in childhood that my governess found no painting, for which I really had talent, but tore me away and set me at the piano—for which I had no talent at all.

I still resentfully remember it and feel the injustice.

Of course, whilst a child is at its lessons, it must give its mind to what it has to learn. Because it loves geography does not mean it need learn no history or mathematics. But if geography is its hobby, give it books of travel and discovery. One day it may become the world's greatest explorer.

All my life I have loved three things. Writing, riding and gardening. Happily I could indulge them to my heart's content till I became more or less expert in all three. Best of all, these three hobbies kept me young and happy and filled me with good feelings toward my neighbor—which you will admit is not to be disdained.

If you have to work many hours at what you do not love, at least spend your leisure doing what you like best, and see that your children do so, too.

LAST FIGHT IS MADE TO SAVE PONZI

Supreme Court Hears Arguments in 'Wizard's' Appeal From State Prison Term

The last stand in an attempt to save Charles Ponzi from his seven to nine-year sentence in State Prison was taken today before the full bench of the Supreme Court when arguments were offered on exceptions taken in the trial.

William H. Lewis counsel for the deposed "coupon king" who is now embroiled in an action over Florida and that proved legal quicksand, argued for Ponzi and declared that the State trial constituted double jeopardy.

Former Special District Attorney Matzke then expressed the prosecution and argued in support of the government claim that Ponzi alleged offense for which he was convicted was a scheme to defraud.

At the time Ponzi was without counsel, and Lewis asked the Supreme Court to scrutinize the record carefully to see that the rights of the defendant were properly protected.

The supposed bill of exceptions for Special Attorney Lewis told the court, was really a bill of exceptions of the Commonwealth.

"The bill was drawn by the assistant district attorney," he said. "All counsel for Ponzi was compelled to do under a threat of a motion to provide a delay in sentence granted to the defendant at the time of sentence, a clear intimation by the court that the motion would be allowed.

"Ponzi was not permitted to put on a defense in the bill of exceptions to make it intelligible to the court."

One of the exceptions relied upon by Ponzi, in that although he was charged with the larceny of $9,500 substantially, the district attorney, after the case had started, and was permitted to introduce evidence that Ponzi received $9,000,000.

PLANS FAMILY REUNION WITH "SISTER-FIANCEE"

New York, March 4 (INS)—Harry Clark, Rockaway editor, who lost a secretary-bride found a sister-in-law preparing a family reunion. Introduced to Mrs. Jeanne Clark when she came to New York from Lebanon, Pa., a few days ago, Clark was told by his father, W. D. Clark of Pittsburgh, that his sweetheart was in reality his half-sister, the daughter of a former marriage. The mother of Miss Clark is in Florida, the report said. He will be reunited with his father in New York shortly. "I can get them all together we shall have a family reunion," he declared.

'BOW, WOW,' SAYS DUCK! NATURE'S GONE WRONG!

A duck that barks like a dog is one of the proud possessions of John Bassett, a resident of Marion, Mass. Last spring when the young ducklings stood on the brood coop among the other fowl known as Mallard ducks. The parents of these fluffy little fellows were somewhat astonished.

"What's after has them acting?" Mr. Bassett exclaimed. "Why, that's not a duck, that's a dog!"

But there were really pieces of evidence that there was no use of disturbing. Today the ducklings have grown to be full-grown and are perfect in all respects, except that they bark instead of quack.

Young duck is no different in appearance from the rest of the brood. All are large and permit themselves to be picked up and caressed at will. No explanation of the strange vocal activity of the duckling has been found.

25 MORE N. Y. CLUBS AND CAFES FACE PADLOCKING

New York, March 4 (INS)—Twenty-five more night clubs and restaurants were reported today to be facing padlock proceedings as a result of activities of Federal prohibition officers in the Broadway-White Light district. Two clubs and restaurants have been padlocked since the first of the year.

I Will Lick Wills First and Then Tunney, Says Dempsey

'After That I'll Let Them All in for Shot at Title'

By JACK DEMPSEY

CHAPTER 12

WHEN I won the championship in 1919 from Jess Willard. I said that I'd be a fighting champion—that I'd take on all comers. I haven't done that—and there are several reasons for it.

In my six and one-half years as champion I have fought five men in defense of my title—Billy Miske, Bill Brennan, Georges Carpentier, Tommy Gibbons and Luis Firpo. That's an average of nearly one battle a year.

I think that's higher in the point of activity than any other heavyweight champion. But that record doesn't satisfy me. And it would have been greater if it hadn't been for two reasons.

My own plans, now that I am handling my own affairs, is to get into action this Summer and try to put away every man who thinks he has a chance with me. The first big shot is to be against Harry Wills.

For three or four years he's been telling the world he can whip me. I don't think he'll ever come close to it. For I believe that Wills is made to order for my style of fighting and I think I can move that fellow out of my path without an awful lot of trouble

After that Gene Tunney can have his chance—if he still wants it. And when I get through with Tunney I'm going to open the doors and let them all in. Every heavyweight in the world who thinks he can whip me will be invited to try conclusions. And I'm not going to try to make the promoters into big purses for those fights. They can have me for a fair purse—or I'll work with them on a decent percentage arrangement.

I'm resolved now that I am handling my own affairs and can fight whom I wish and when I wish to make good on that "fighting champion" promise I intend to take on as many men as I can find to fight me—go right through the ranks from Wills down.

Somewhere along the line I might get licensed on the club and they'll have an "eye" there to keep me from getting foul. But, if it doesn't happen then, after I've whipped every man worth while in heavyweight harness, I may decide to retire—but not before.

'I Still Love the Old Boxing Racket,' Declares Champion

Back in my earliest fighting years, before Jack Kearns was my manager I fought two and three times a week—and would have fought oftener if the chance had come to me.

For I loved the old beating racket in those days—and I still love it. I'm never so happy as when the bell sends me into action and it's up to me to knock my man—or get knocked.

I'm through with Jack Kearns—all through. I think I am competent to handle my own affairs, and if I am not, then I alone am loser. During all the time that Kearns was my manager I tried to play fair and honest with him—and I'll leave the decision as to whether I did up to the public.

It doesn't, in the final reckoning, matter much whether Kearns made me a champion or I made him world famous as a manager. He took me when I was a green fighter and he was a "has and beg" manager out on the Pacific coast. We moved along together to certain fame and success and that for partnership of the Kearns and Dempsey.

I don't know how much Jack Kearns really got for himself through managing me. I imagine it went well beyond $1,000,000. That's for eight years work and that's not a bad average of about $125,000 a year. Whether that earning is to recompense Kearns is for him—and the public to decide.

In the alleged breaking of the contract I have not done Kearns any actual financial damage. He was, under those written terms, to get 33 1/3 per cent. of what I EARNED. Since then I haven't earned anything—and so Kearns can't lose anything. If I did any fighting, or earned money before August 8, 1926, then Kearns, if he were not given a "cut," might be construed as a loser.

My conscience is free and clear as to my dealings with Jack Kearns. While our partnership lasted I never tried to give him be most of it—but did try to give him the best of it. Whether I succeeded—or failed—is something that the sporting public must decide as unbiased jurors in the case.

Jack in Chicago Friday to Talk Wills Bout

Chicago, March 4 (A.P.).—The proposed heavyweight championship match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills will be discussed here Friday with the arrival here of the titleholder to confer with Chicagoans interested in promoting the bout.

The champion will meet R. F. Clements, head of the Coliseum Athletic Club, which organization has a five-year lease of that building to stage boxing, provided the sport is legalized at the election April 13. Clements and his associates already have paid $50,000 to bind the lease.

Clements said Dempsey will meet the financial backers of the Coliseum A. C., which is actively bidding for the fight. Dempsey will also be a luncheon guest of Sheldon Clark, one of the vice-presidents of the Sinclair Oil Company.

Owen Versus Foley a Game in Itself at Arena Friday

By BILL GRIMES

FOR B. A. A., George Owen playing centre. For Pere Marquette, Sonny Foley playing centre.

George Owen and Sonny Foley are two of the greatest all-around athletes ever developed in New England. During their preparatory school days, while Owen was at Newton High and Foley at Cambridge Latin, these stars met for three years. On the football field Owen had the edge on the midget Cantab, but during the baseball seasons Foley outshone the Newtonite, and it was a standoff in hockey.

Due to the strained relations between Boston College and Harvard, Owen and Foley did not hook up during their college careers. Owen was the first Harvard athlete who ever won nine "H's." For three years he made his letter in football, hockey and baseball. He is recognized as one of the greatest of all Harvard athletes and his feat of winning nine letters, shared only by Jack Hammond, fully entitles him to such honors.

FOR four years Sonny Foley starred at hockey and baseball at Boston College. He is an exceptionally clever ball player. Foley turned in some great games for B. C. and during the Summer he played with the North Cambridge team of the Twilight League. During the Winter months that Sonny was at the Heights, he was just about one-half of the B. C. team. In spite of his size, he went out for the Boston College football team his freshman year and was awarded his letter. Foley won four baseball, four hockey and one football letters.

Sonny Foley is playing his first year of club hockey. From the opening game of the season, he has featured in every game. Down in New York his playing has been so sensational that he was offered an opportunity to turn professional but wisely refused.

FOLEY has been doing yeoman service for the "Cubeys" all season. He gives the prettiest exhibition of centre play imaginable. A wonderful stick handler, with a speedy, accurate shot; a fast skater, with as quick a jump as any player in the game; always playing the game clean and fair, Foley is a credit to hockey.

Owen is exceptionally fast and clever carrying the puck. He has one of the quickest snap shots ever seen in the Arena, possesses a thorough knowledge of the game and, like Sonny, plays the game fair, never resorting to any unsportsmanlike conduct regardless of what his opponents do.

Owen and Foley will meet Friday night when the Boston Athletic Association tackles the Pere Marquette sextet at the Boston Arena in one of the most important games of the season. They will be the centres of their respective teams and this will be the first time they have opposed each other since their schoolboy days.

HELEN WILLS WINS AGAIN

Mentone, France, March 4 (A.P.).—Helen Wills reached the semi-finals of the Mentone lawn tennis tournament today by defeating Miss Evelyn Dearman, 6—1, 6—1. She meets Mrs. R. M. Harvey of England in the semi-finals.

It was just a practice match for the American champion, who expects merely with minds at the net, aimed at improving her volleying.

Her defeat of Miss Harvey is regarded as a foregone conclusion, and in the final she is expected to meet the winner of the semi final between Senorita De Alvarez and Miss Didi Vlasto in the lower half.

Helen Wills and Henry Van Alen (Hawkin N. Y., today beat Miss Marriot and Charles L. Kingsley of England 6—4, 6—2.

Helen Wants Bill Tilden as Doubles Partner

Mentone, March 4 (A.P.).—Helen Wills wants "Big" Bill Tilden to come across the ocean and play with her in the mixed doubles at Wimbledon. She modestly expressed the view today that by June she would be in such fine form that she would prove a worthy partner for him.

"I don't suppose Tilden can now refuse to come to France to wipe out the two defeats he suffered at the hands of Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste at indoor tennis in New York," Miss Wills said.

King Gustave of Sweden, the "Mr. O." of the tennis courts, complimented a young girl, saying it had been a pleasure to meet so good a racquet wielder.

"Your Majesty is too flattering," said the young player, "especially as Your Majesty knows what it is to play with Suzanne Lenglen."

"Ah, but I rate Lenglen my best against Mlle. Lenglen," replied Gustave. "Mlle. Lenglen is a queen, and queens always make me nervous."

Hahn Beaten in Record Mile

Wellington, New Zealand, March 4 (A.P.).—R. A. Rose, one-mile champion of New Zealand, today defeated Lloyd Hahn, miler of the Boston Athletic Association, in their fourth special one-mile race. The time, 4 minutes 13 3-5 seconds, established a new record for Australasia. Rose won by 12 yards.

Wertz Is Big Noise in Opening Skirmish at St. Pete

KID HURLER SHOWS LOT OF STUFF

Banny and Rudolph Predict He Will Be Regular; Game Ends in Tie

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 4.—The first taste of actual contest has the Braves all rarin' to go. Some real rivalry has bonged up between the two squads which make up the camp now, and the practice sessions, that will be the daily order, promise lots of regular baseball

The so-called varsity and the so-called seconds will have a six inning game each afternoon, until further notice. The first game was a tie, and unfolded some remarkable baseball, when one stops to consider that the boys have only been working for exactly half a week.

Manager Bancroft has picked out the nearest possible approach to his regular lineup that's possible just now. He tosses them in with the new pitchers. He has awarded the veteran flingers to the subs, each and every one of whom thinks that a big league job is just around the corner.

BANNY A PSYCHOLOGIST.

Banny's combination makes for even battling and forecasts much excitement before the scramble for jobs is over and done with. Players in the Spring balk at continuous practice, but they love the game idea, and pilot David has been smart enough to take advantage of that. David is quite a psychologist, though he doesn't realize it, and his methods seem destined to bring a well prepared troupe North for the real fireworks.

Wertz, Graham, Benton and Bobby Smith had three innings workouts in the opening engagement, and the rest of the chuckers were in line to get their test this afternoon. Genewich and Cooney were billed to chuck for the Yannigans, with Edwards and Hearne of the Eastern League had the other part of the assignment

The tossing of the aforesaid Wertz was the big noise of the first big score. This young man has a star seems to be right on the way to fame under the large tent. He has everything a pitcher needs, including poise and control.

His looked like a million dollars for three innings, mixing remarkable speed with a snappy curve and fine control. He wasn't flustered at all by the importance of the occasion, and acted like a young man who knew what it was all about.

"There's a kid," remarked Dick Rudolph, pointing to Wertz, "who will have to win a lot of ball games for the Braves. He's a real humdinger, and I don t mean maybe."

Dick doesn t progenerate reek lessly in the spring, and neither do old timers like Bancroft and Arthur Devlin. All of them are willing to bet now that the Wertz chap will hang on with the Braves and be a winning pitcher.

FOUR STAR MATMEN ON WRESTLING CARD

Four of the leading mat stars in the country meet tonight in Paul Bowser's double wind-up show at the Grand Opera House, corner Washington and Dover streets. One of these four stars is to meet the authorized world's champion, Joe Stecher, next week in this city.

The quartet consists of Ned McGuire, the great Irish "atmog boy," who comes to grips with Alex Lundan, the most sensational and clever Swedish wrestler ever to step before the mat fans; Theodore Goverchin, Serbian champion, and Joe Malcewicz, the unreturned wrestling king.

Big Bill Beth meets Charlie Donnell, the Norwood police champion, and Big Jake Brissler, from Des Moines, will clash with a foe to be announced.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

What confuses many golfers about the shift of weight, I think, is their concern as to just where it takes place during the back swing. They become so involved in making sure about their shift that they forget everything else, or more exactly, the mental direction for the swing goes off on this particular tangent, so that weight shifting is the only thing directed at it, being ever so recited, is overdone

HANEY WILL REPORT AT NEW ORLEANS

By JACK CONWAY.

New Orleans, La., March 4.—Everybody's in step in the Red Sox camp but Fred Haney, shaking third sacker and former Tiger star.

The Los Angeles Infielder is the only member of the Sox who hasn't put his signature on the dotted line. He is expected to do that little thing after he arrives in camp, and has a conference with Bob Quinn in a telegram to the Sox owner, Haney declared he felt he would not have any trouble adjusting his affairs with the Boston club.

Haney is likely to be the regular third baseman at the start of the season. Jimmy Geygan is his only serious rival and it looks as though Haney's experience would give him the call over Goygan.

Haney's baseball career was almost cut short one afternoon at Fenway Park when his head got in the way of one of Howard Ehmke's fast ones. Haney was rushed to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in an unconscious condition. When reporters arrived at the hospital to inquire about Haney's condition they found the third sacker propped up in bed calmly smoking a cigarette.

HERRERA ON JOB.

Don Ramon Herrera has started operations around second base. The Cuban hasn't got the least doubt but what he will be the regular second sacker of the clan or Foul once the season gets under way.

Emmett McCann will make Herrera hustle to land the second base assignment McCann is a brilliant fielder and very fast. He also had a batting mark of .310 while with the Portland club last season.

The Red Sox players received a scare during the practice session when Howard Ehmke, pitching arm was dropped by a fierce line drive Ehmke was hitting fumoes to the outfielders at the time and didn't see the ball. He fell to the ground in a heap. A group of players rushed to his assistance. It was several minutes before Ehmke recovered from the effects of the force of the blow. It was then discovered that he had not suffered any serious injury

QUINN DONS UNIFORM.

Bob Quinn surprised the boys when he appeared in uniform and went through a stiff practice session. Quinn started his baseball career as a catcher. He also played the outfield at times, being a good hitter.

CONWAY WITH SOX

Beer and Wine.
Bob Quinn's Stand.
Ruth Greatest Card.

By JACK CONWAY—

New Orleans, La., March 3.—Red Sox players can drink a limited amount of beer and light wines if their taste runs that way, according to a statement made to this writer.

"I don't believe in telling ball players they can't take a glass of beer or a glass of wine if they want to do so," said Quinn. "I don't drink myself, but that is not any reason why I should try to bar those in my employ from doing so.

"When I was president of the Columbus Club of the American Association, I once noticed some of our players going down an alley which I knew led to a saloon. I followed them, stepped up to the bar and ordered a glass of ginger ale. The players were all drinking beer. I spoke casually to them and the next morning called a special meeting.

"Naturally, the players all felt they were going to be fined. Instead, I told them I didn't object to their taking a glass of beer, but that I also didn't wish them to be running down back alleys to get it. I found that when a ball player has to sneak in his beer that he takes a dozen glasses, where he originally only intended to take one. As for whiskey I don't believe it does anybody any good. But if a player is sick and he thinks whiskey, used strictly for medicinal purposes, will help him I have no objection to his using it."

Jack Conway

While saying that golf is helping rather than injuring baseball, Judge Landis gets a real kick out of the links game. The high commissioner of baseball, who will be back in New Orleans on Sunday on his way to the training camps in Florida, has appointment to play eight holes of golf with the Boston newspapermen here with the Sox

Landis is right when he says that no sport rivals baseball for steady drawing power. Think of the thousands of persons who day after day through the baseball season turn out to see Babe Ruth and the other stars of the national pastime in action. I have always considered Ruth the greatest drawing card in sport Jack Dempsey and Red Grange attract mighty throngs to the box of fice, but they do not make as frequent appearance in competitive sport as does the heavy hitting Bambino.

Boxing Notes

Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, former middleweight champion, has three months' grace to walk the straight and narrow path in order to get a crack at his former title. Greb says "I am through being called the 'Cabaret King.' I am not going to become a deacon but will strive to live the life of one."

Greb is to the boxing game what Ruth is to baseball. By putting reverse English on his habits there is no doubt but what the Pittsburg windmill will make a come-back.

Dedham Post of the American Legion is holding an amateur boxing tournament tomorrow evening in Dedham. Manager Charles McAuliffe, reports that the 118, 126 and 147 pound open classes, and the 135 and heavyweight divisions novice will be full of action

Maxey Rosenbloom, the New York Hebrew middleweight, is to meet Tommy Loughran in the feature 10-round go at the Philadelphia Arena on Monday, March 8. Ruby Stein, Brooklyn junior lightweight, according to Matchmaker Bobby North is to tackle Lou Mayes of Baltimore in the semi final 10-round contest

Dilboy Post Veterans of Foreign Wars will have the first honor of hosting the New Federal Junior A. A. U. boxing championships on Thursday evening, March 11, in Knights of Columbus Hall, Somerville. There will be boxing in the eight divisions, namely the 113, 118 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweights. Entries close with the Dilboy Post V. F. W., K. of C. Building, Somerville.

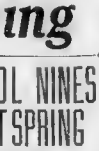
Moe and Joe

Moe almost dropped over another winner yesterday. He slapped his biscuits on Robert Maxwell and the bevie finished in the second hole, paying $4 20. Moe's record is ten winners and three seconds out of the last thirteen bets. Today the abbreviated plunger is taking a slap at Captain Jack in the fourth which Jake DeWolf has been touting for some time. Sugar in kick $2,135.97.

SCHOOL NINES START SPRING PRACTICE

By EDDIE DONDERO.

The schoolboy baseball season is with us once more. Greeted and aided by typical Spring weather, the youthful ball hawks have already received their first actual taste of the 1926 campaign either in the high school gymnasiums or on some sandlot where conditions are permissible. Naturally, this taste was a pleasant one.



Eddie Dondero

In Greater Boston as well as along the North Shore the national pastime was ushered in only a few days ago. Lowell Classical, Lynn English, Revere, Swampscott and Somerville have launched their preliminary exercises and now the season is gathering momentum. Medford and Boston Latin commence baseballing early next week.

The official opening of the season is only a short distance up the street. Most athletic authorities used excellent judgment in permitting the athletes to make early preparations. It gives every candidate a chance to limber up. Nothing pleases a kid more than to burn 'em across the plate or hit 'em right on the nose.

Coach Dickerman is one of the many mentors who believes in Spring training and the major league ball clubs who have been training on Southern campus grounds have nothing on Somerville High school a delegation of battery men.

It's almost two weeks now that the candidates at Somerville have been tossing baseballs back and forth under the watchful eye of Coach Dickerman.

The problem which confronts Dickerman is one that requires deep thought and consideration. There is not one single veteran on deck who ever donned a Somerville uniform last year. However, there are some hopefuls who have been detailed to their assignments and another championship nine is in the "makings."

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3.—Archie Kelsey, the Nebraska Indian, who joined the Braves late in the season from the Waterloo team last year

He's a southpaw pitcher who won 18 and lost nine games and batted .223 in nine innings, and was inclined to be wild, as he handed out 104 bases on balls, hit twenty batters and cut loose eleven wild pitches. He had some stuff, though, as he fanned 174 batters. He is reputed to be a temperamental aborigine with great possibilities. He's only nineteen years old and is built like a string bean

When Jimmy Welsh gets in tomorrow the Tribe will have its full complement of regular outfielders. Only Welsh got into the Saturday game with the senators, but will be given a lot of extra work to make up for his disturbance. He was ordered to report March 1 or suffer a salary reduction, but all that will be forgotten once he signs a contract. Jimmy's punch will be needed in the snappy assault that Banny is fitting up.

The wild fishermen in the squad will all be out on the gulf Sunday chasing the denizens of the deep. A gold cup has been offered for the ball player who hauls in the largest fish down here this Spring, and Bernie Neis and the other Ike Waltons all want to collect It's worth at least $50 on the hoof Some of the fish in these parts are so large that for any germ,

B. C. and B. U. Clash in Windsor Cup Game at Arena Tonight

Two interesting and exciting hockey games are billed at the Boston Arena tonight with Boston College and Boston University heading the program in their second game for Winsor Cup. Boston College High and Boston High will complete the entertainment with a battle which has the rivalry of two leagues as an incentive, B. C. High representing the City League and Stoneham the Suburban.

The contest between the Eagles and Terriers is likely to be a bitter affair for the Terriers have never been satisfied with the result in their first clash. At that time the Eagles gained a close 2 to 1 victory.

Chick Suggs to Box Marlow at Salem

Regardless of the chatter going the rounds about Greater Boston, North Shore fistic fans and numerous others will be on hand to welcome the sensational Chick Suggs of New Bedford at the North Street Rink to morrow night, when the "Black Streak" goes through the ropes to Mix Bill Marlowe of New York in the feature bout of the Salem A. A. boxing card.

David Lumiansky, the manager of Chick Suggs, was very confident in saying, "Why shouldn't I bring Suggs into Salem? He is one of the world's best fighters and wherever I can get the money for him to perform, we will be on hand."

"Anybody passing the dope about town that Kaese will not appear in Salem is dizzy. Money in Salem is just as good to me as that which I might see in Boston, New York or any other city."

Last month Suggs was seen in the ring five times and he has already fought once this week, in Hartford, and will be in Salem tomorrow night, continued Lumiansky

Although the Suggs-Marlowe bout is the feature attraction, Eddie Adonis and Yvey Lessard will be in the semi-final of eight rounds. The two six-round preliminary bouts will have Tommy Clayton, West End, and Joey Hollan of Beverly

LOCAL STARS TO SHINE IN THE I. C. 4-A MEET

By STED CHANDLER

The I. C. 4-A games which will be the sporting magnet in Gotham on Saturday night, will also attract to the 102nd Regiment Armory a goodly delegation of Hub fans and large amount of interest in the proceedings from those who remain at home.

And why not? New England bids fair to furnish more than its share of features before the last race is run. Harvard, B. C., H. C., M. I. T., and Colby are all sending representatives of no mean calibre, and that's not mere local pride but is based on sound fact.

Harvard expects to win, even over the strong opposition which Penn and Georgetown are bound to put up. B. C. expects its two-mile relay team to win, and banks on a surprise from Hussey and another from Dick Murphy. Should Hussey defeat Miller in the 70-yard dash, it would be a real upset for the human cannonball, and might seriously affect the Crimson point-total The same goes for a B. C. relay victory.

Manager Jim Hickey of Jack Ryder's troupe has compiled a pretty fair estimate of the outcome. He gives Harvard three firsts and a possible relay win, B. C a hurdle victory and a second for Hussey.

Whirlwinds Face Celtics Tomorrow

The Original Celtics of New York world s champions, will be in town tomorrow night to defend their crown, against New England's leading quintet, the Boston Whirlwinds, at the Firet Corps Cadets Armory, Park square.

Two duels between four of the best and most popular players in the business will feature this game. Henry Riley, brilliant East Boston basketball player, will start the Bostonese opposition in the person of the Celtics, Johnny Beckman. Lou Gordon, the most popular player that ever wore the colors of the Pere Marquette Council, K. of C. team, will oppose Nat Holman.

HOLDING THE ADMIRATION OF MEN

Beatrice Fairfax Gives Girls Good Counsel

By Beatrice Fairfax,
Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

ETHEL is crazy about men. She admits it.

She does everything she can to attract and interest them—everything that is within her code of ethics. She wouldn't do anything that seemed to her downright wrong. But Ethel's ideas of right and wrong are far from prim. No one can accuse her of being "nerve-minded" or prudish.

Ethel is pretty in a typical flapperish way. She stands for the best word in fashion, and she has the vivacity and charm of youth. And so it often happens that men adore her and wish to become better acquainted.

Trouble Begins

Then Ethel's trouble begins. Young men usually call on her once or twice. After that the acquaintance drops—Ethel can't understand why.

"I'm a good dancer and I'm not bad to look at. And certainly I take an interest in men," Ethel complains. "Then why is it that I can't manage to have a 'steady'?

Any number of "Ethels" everywhere are pursuing over this problem. Yet the solution is obvious. They are incapable of holding interest because they are uninteresting. No person with just one idea can be "good company." Men are the one subject that occupy the thoughts and attention of Ethel. This obsession causes her to be a bore even to the very men who interest her.

A man who is attracted by Ethel's prettiness and the lure of her none-too-reserved dress, manner and make-up, soon tires of the monotony of petting and finds Ethel stupid.

Moreover, it sometimes happens that a man on short acquaintance mistakes Ethel's eagerness and free manner and becomes insulting. Then he's surprised because she resents his familiarity and proves to be after all, not bad but just silly.

Little Incentive

But at best there's little incentive to trying to win a girl who's obviously anxious to be won. So the average young man soon turns from Ethel to a more reserved, less obvious "man-crazy" type of girl for satisfying friendship and companionship.

Don't be afraid to maintain dignity underneath your good-humored fun and "kidding." The man whose friendship you lose because you know how to say "no" and mean it, isn't worth bothering with. He wouldn't prove a safe friend.

Men don't care about prudes or sticks. But every man is more interested—and more permanently interested—in a girl because she possesses dignity, reserve and resources within herself and has other absorbing enthusiasms besides men.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

THIS screen has a great influence on life!

That's why when I hear that often-asked question "God's wrong with the movies?"—I want to shout—MALNUTRITION!

The crying need of the movies right now is food—for the female film players so that they be more than mere shadows, when they are off the screen as well as on!

Women are always going on diets when not the fashions! Stupid directors seem to forget that plump and healthy people have played an important part in making heart history in this world. Instead, they have set a silly standard of half-starved sirens who are utterly ridiculous, wobbling around personifying sex appeal—as if these hollow cheeked sunken cheeked, hipless hatted, gasping girls could exemplify the magnetic lure of health the script calls for!

I can name any number of screen players who have lost their pull with the public and owe their waning popularity to the lathes paper dolls they have become on a pineapple diet!

Vitality is the source of personality, and food is the fuel that feeds it!

The poor emaciated creature in the centre of my cartoon I carefully copied from an unretouched postal photo sent to a friend from Florida! If it wasn't so pitiful it would be funny!

Her gown is costly, her pearls no doubt real and the beaded bandeau she wears on her carefully "coiffed" hair was expensive, too, you may know.

But what that poor girl needs is more interior decoration—soup, potatoes, life giving gravy—NOURISHMENT!

Just another HORRIBLE EXAMPLE of overdieting!

I heartily condemn picture producers who go against their own better judgment and choose a poor skeleton of a girl for a leading part that they must photograph in "long shots" and diffused camera to soften her flaws and hide the defects of dieting.

By glorifying skin and bones, they inspire healthy girls to destroy themselves by semi-starvation. These very directors and producers have nice plump wives they fell in love with and married!

Malnutrition in the movies is becoming monotonous.

It's cold, repelling, and negative!

Women, alone are charmed by the skeleton silhouette! Men still prefer the bathing beauty comedies with well cushioned curves cavorting around!

The glow of health is akin to the spark of genius!

A few pounds could add much prettiness, personality and popularity to many stars and screen actresses—and at the same time encourage other women to realize the beauty of healthy curves!

Pointers and Recipes From Martha Lee's Pen

Best Sellers

GREETINGS, everybody!

From the requests I receive for recipes, ice box cakes are among the six best sellers in desserts. They certainly are delicious—quite nice enough for company—nourishing and readily digested.

Any round mould will do to shape the cake, although a melon or spring side angel cake tin is ideal. The general plan is to line the mould with lady fingers or thin slices of hot water sponge cake. Then a layer of filling is spread over the lady fingers, then another layer of lady fingers, another of the filling, more lady fingers until the mould is filled. Then this is placed in the refrigerator for 24 hours. The filling soaks into the lady fingers and the mixture solidifies. When ready to serve remove the rim of the mould, or slip the cake from it, and cover the top with sweetened, flavored whipped cream, decorated. If you wish, with chopped nuts and candied fruits. (Instead of using expensive heavy cream for whipping, remember you can buy thin cream and by adding a drop or two of the magic liquid I wrote about in my marketing column last Monday, can beat it as thick as the heaviest variety.)

Now first I must tell you about a delicious ice box cake:

CHOCOLATE ICE BOX CAKE

Line a mould with lady fingers or with thin sponge cake slices. Melt ½ a pound of sweet chocolate in a double boiler. Add 3 tablespoons of water and the beaten yolks of (dare I say it?) 4 eggs. (They're so reasonable right now). Cook slowly until thick and smooth, stirring all the time. When cool fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill the mould as I have described and set away for 24 hours. When serving cover with whipped cream.

Lemon ice box cake is equally delicious. Mix together 1 teaspoon of cornstarch, ½ cup of sugar, 1 cup of milk and the yolks of 3 eggs. Put in the double boiler with 1 tablespoon butter and cook until thick and smooth. Add the juice of 1 lemon and the stiffly beaten egg whites. This should be while the first mixture is still warm. Use this for the filling as described. If you prefer orange flavor, use the juice and rind of 1 orange and the rind of 1 lemon instead of the lemon juice. A pretty decoration for this cake is made with sections of orange arranged in flower shape on top of the whipped cream or finely chopped nuts and maraschino cherries.

LEMON ICE BOX CAKE

Mix together 1 teaspoon of cornstarch, ½ cup of sugar, 1 cup of milk and the yolks of 3 eggs. Put in the double boiler with 1 tablespoon butter and cook until thick and smooth. Add the juice of 1 lemon and the stiffly beaten egg whites. This should be while the first mixture is still warm. Use this for the filling as described. If you prefer orange flavor, use the juice and rind of 1 orange and the rind of 1 lemon instead of the lemon juice. A pretty decoration for this cake is made with sections of orange arranged in flower shape on top of the whipped cream or finely chopped nuts and maraschino cherries.

Mocha ice box cake is a terrible temptation to me:

MOCHA ICE BOX CAKE

The filling is made by pouring 1 cup of hot milk over ¼ cup of coffee grounds and letting stand where it will keep hot for 10 minutes. Strain. Mix together in a double boiler 3 tablespoons of corn starch, ½ cup of sugar, and a pinch of salt. Add the strained coffee and the beaten yolks of 3 eggs. Cook slowly until thick and smooth. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla and while still warm fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill the mould as described. This is sufficient for 3 deserts for a family of six.

I have another delicious lemon ice box cake, somewhat richer than the first, and another chocolate one if you have an Oliver Twist appetite for more.

"Me and Lucie decided that I was too blatant. She took it as best she could then. There was nothing to do, I suppose. But now she is married again—"

"To whom?" I asked.

"To Matt Hawley," Jeanie said quietly, with an odd, hesitant emphasis on every syllable.

The name brought back the most tense and trying period of my life. I found myself reconstructing the dramatic days when Brooke De Courcey's shadow was over my happiness. I was so lost in thought that I had to bring myself back with a jerk to hear Jeanie asking:

"Did you think those people would never cross my path again?"

"You never was as close to them as I was. And I never see them—never even think of them," I said.

"We are neighbors," Jeanie said and the note of suppressed emotion became stronger and stronger in her voice. "Lucie demanded an interview. She came to Dreamwold."

"What?" I asked.

"Three days ago," Jeanie said pertinently.

"What has all this to do with me—with us?" I asked.

"Everything," Jeanie said grimly. "Why do you bring it up now?"

"This is the right time. Didn't you wonder what I meant when I said that Pat could take care of himself even at the cost of someone else's happiness?"

"You didn't say quite that," I protested, trying to gain time—to fortify myself for what was coming.

"I know how he hid behind Jim," Jeanie said coldly. "I know of his affair with Brooke De Courcey."

I thought that was it," I managed at last.

"I wonder if he would have let Jim go to the chair?" Jeanie asked pensively. But I noticed how the fingers with which she was plaiting the bed-covers stumbled and fell inert and then twitched as she moved restlessly about, showing me the haggardness of her face.

"There was never any kind of that," I protested vigorously. "It was just after that poor girl—was done away with, that they discovered that Basil Diversey or Barry De Courcey or whoever the man who pretended to be her brother—really was—had committed the—crime."

"He strangled her with Jim's handkerchief, which he stole from Park Manor while you were [illegible] there," Jeanie said reminiscently.

[illegible] circumstantial evidence against Jim [illegible] Why did Jim let himself in for that?"

"To protect you," I explained. "Your little son had just died. You weren't yourself, Jeanie. Brooke pursued Pat. He didn't mean to get involved, but she tangled him up somehow—as an adventuress can. Jim knew it would break your heart to know the truth. He made Pat hide behind him. But it's all over now. Why rake it up? Why spoil the sacrifice Jim made for love of his sister—and why judge Pat for trying to save you from the misery of dealing with it all—"

Goodbye "Blue Monday"!

New kind of soap soaks week's wash whiter than washboard rubbing

HERE'S a new kind of soap that ends washboard scrubbing forever.

It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders—just this amazing granulated soap that soaks clothes whiter than you could rub them!

Gone are the weary hours over wash tubs. Gone are the reddened hands of washday.

Now you just soak the clothes in Rinso suds an hour or two, or overnight—and the dirt and stains float right off without scrubbing. The most soiled parts need only a gentle rub between the fingers to make them snowy. Even in the hardest water, clothes rinse spotless!

Clothes last longer—hands stay youthful

No other laundry soap is easier on hands or clothes than Rinso—it contains no acids or bleaches to injure white clothes or fast colors.

Clothes really last longer this new way, because there's no hard friction against a board. Even boiling isn't needed, for soaking in Rinso whitens better than boiling—and sterilizes, too.

Try Rinso next washday instead of old-time bar soap. See how much cleaner and whiter the clothes get. See how many hours of rubbing you save yourself. See if you'll ever go back to the old way again! Get Rinso for small cost from your grocer. Follow easy directions on package.

Fine in washing machines

Rinso is recommended for safety, and for whiter wash, by 23 leading washing machine makers.

scratching his blond head in a shamed sort of way.

Sylvia flew to him and kissed him. She tore the letter in a dozen pieces and threw it into the wastebasket.

"She doesn't know you, or she wouldn't write things like that" she cried, loyally. "She thinks that because you're so good looking you must be bad. She says there never was a good-looking man who knew how to behave himself——"

"We'll show her a thing or two, won't we?" Ranny asked, his face buried in the warm perfume of Sylvia's hair. "We won't look at another woman, ever, will we?"

His bride shook her head. "You won't, really, will you, Ranny? I'm so jealous," she confessed, and her eyes were filled with a desperate appeal. "You don't know how jealous I am of you, darling"

"Darling yourself!" Ranny answered, and patted her shoulder and looked at her as if she were the most delightful and beautiful thing in the world.

And she was, those first heavenly days. Happiness had made her blossom and flower with a new loveliness, much as sunshine makes a rose-bud bloom.

Rocks Ahead

"I hate to think of going back home," she said one day when they were sitting side by side on an old fence, to rest, after a long walk under the May sky. "I hate to think of giving you up to other people—I hate to think of sharing you with your men friends, and your business friends, and your father and your mother."

He put his hand into his inside coat pocket and drew out an envelope.

"That reminds me," he said, "I had a letter from mother today."

He handed it to her.

"I had one from Fay Shirley, too," he added in a queer tone.

Sylvia stared at him, her deep violet eyes wide with surprise.

"You did" she cried, "let's see it"

He looked at her, smiling, and slowly shook his head.

"Well, why not?" Sylvia asked, and he shrugged his shoulders, good-naturedly.

"My letter, he explained. "It was sent to me, my dear."

"But so was the one from your mother," she threw back at him.

"Yes, but I wanted you to see that one," he answered.

Sylvia's chin shook, and she flushed.

"And you don't want me to see the one from Fay? There's something in it you can't show me?" she asked.

Once more he shrugged his handsome shoulders in that amused way, and laughed.

"No, there's nothing in it that you couldn't see. But I want you to know right from the beginning of our married life that my letters belong to me—and that you're not to open them or look at them unless I show them to you," he said. "One of the great troubles with married life is that very often neither the husband nor the wife has any more privacy than a goldfish."

She stood perfectly still for a moment, blinking back the hot tears that dimmed her eyes. Through them she could see the shimmering blue and gold and green of the landscape and she wondered how the world could look so beautiful and peaceful when life could be so cruel and sharp—sometimes.

Love or What?

"But Ranny," she said to him when she could control her voice, "I don't understand you. You talk as if marriage were a sort of warfare—as if the husband and wife were enemies—hiding their secrets from each other. It's friendship, isn't it, first of all?"

He shook his head. "No—there are no friendships between men and women," he answered her. "There's only love—or indifference."

Sylvia remembered that in the week that followed.

On the second Monday of the honeymoon Ranny woke up with a headache.

"I guess I've slept too much the last week," he explained, aloud, to himself. "I'm not used to going to bed every night at 9 o'clock the way we do up here in this God forsaken place"

Sylvia who was brushing her dark satiny hair at the mirror, turned it back out of her eyes and looked at him with a hurt expression written on her mirror-like face.

"To call this heavenly little sanctuary a God-forsaken place! Why, it has been the happiest spot she had ever found. She loved every bit of it, from the windows with their white dotted swissin curtains to the cool dark dining room. She loved the meals she ate, and the most wonderful week of her life here with Ranny

"How would you like to go back to town?" he said, as he got out of bed and reached for his pajama dressing gown. "Really—I'm sick of doing nothing but watch the grass grow. How about you?"

Ranny Tires

If Sylvia told the truth, she would have said that there was nothing in the world she liked more than to watch the grass grow, as Ranny put it. She loved every bit of it, so pleasant as to walk through the country roads and across the green fields with Ranny, talking to him lazily, or reading to him as they lolled under a tree or a hedge.

But she would never admit it, she told herself proudly. If he was tired of the place, and the quiet, it meant that he was tired of being with her. It meant that he was sick and tired of the honeymoon and wanted to get back to the things he was used to—the crowds of people, the jazz, the noisy streets of the city and the friends he had there.

"He's sick of me!" Sylvia quietly told herself the truth.

But her smile had never been more brilliant than when she looked at him with those flirts eyes of hers and said: "Ranny, I'm lonesome for town, too. I'll pack this morning"

It took her an hour to put their things into the two bags that they had bought, and to straighten up the rooms—the bedroom that looked into bush, tree with a bird's nest in it.

Ranny was standing out on the lawn smoking. He nodded her to send the bags down when they were ready.

I am sure that he won't come right out and say that he wasn't sorry to come again into the room where they had been so deliously happy, to give a last remembering kiss. It meant nothing to him—the happiness that they had shared there, together, then.

She bit her quivering lip as she stood there, looking down at his well-loved head.

He turned and, drawn by that look, raised his head and saw her.

"Don't forget my khaki coat in the closet Sylvy," he called.

She got it. As she took it down from the hanger something in its inside pocket rustled, and Sylvy put her hand in and pulled it out.

It was Fay's letter!

Not stopping to read it then, and almost without thinking what she was doing, she put it into her handbag and ran down to Ranny

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

I would like to know whether it is proper for me to have a young married couple as my guests and usher. He is a cousin of mine and I should like him to have the honor.

J. K.

IT is proper to have married people as attendants, for it is what you mean. Nowadays no distinction is made between married and unmarried people as attendants, either for the bride or the groom.

It is correct for the bride to choose her attendants and the groom to choose his. I think you are the groom—is that right? If you are the groom, you have the privilege of asking the cousin to be your usher, but you have not the right to ask the wife to be the attendant of the bride. If your bride-to-be wishes to have the cousin's wife as her attendant, very well. But she must invite her to attend her. It is out of order for the groom to invite her to serve in this capacity.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married. Is it proper for my mother to be matron of honor or my married sister?

Who gives the bride and groom away? The groom has no father.

ANXIOUS.

IT is proper for either to be matron of honor. It is more customary for the bride's sister to act in this capacity.

The bride usually is presented in marriage by her father. If she has no father, then the bride's brother gives her in marriage. Or she may if she has neither father nor brother, have her uncle, or any other male relation, or an older male friend of the family. Or the bride's mother may present her in marriage.

The groom usually is not presented in marriage.

The Leading Beauty Specialist

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Here's the Young Man of Magic Who's Busy Making His Delighted Subject Positively the Happiest Girl in All This Wide World.

Look above and you'll see the person, the one person she thinks is Apollo and Sir Galahad rolled into one.

A wonderful place is this salon of love, as you'll agree if you've ever had the luck to visit it.

THIS successful young man in the art of making plain faces to shine and beautiful countenances to dazzle has the ingredient. It's happiness. And I never heard of another beauty doctor who could give you that to drop in your eyes and pat in your cheeks and lips.

A state of happiness is the magic. And the most perfect state of happiness that a girl can be in, with the one exception of, mind you, perfect, perfect state of delirious content, if you can possibly manage it, is to be one placid and the other violent—when a young person has her first little baby and finds it is safely healthy and has brains—as the state of being in love!

That place wherein a girl sees one rather homely young man who dotes on her as the living reincarnation of Apollo and Sir Galahad. And KNOWS, for he shows it very plainly, that he believes her to be all the lovely traits that have been in woman and nature since the world began, not to mention any unearthly, remote and staggering qualities that have not been heard of yet.

Love has that to offer in his salon. His salon! You'd be surprised to really a garden and when you step into his door you step OUT into fairy-land. And when you step back into this everyday world again your friends don't know you!—Nell Brinkley

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Those who suffer from "chapped" hands should keep a basin of oatmeal ready, and after drying the hands thoroughly on a towel, plunge them into this. It will invariably keep them soft and smooth, and prevent chapping.

A long-handled broom, when too worn to use in the ordinary way, can have a piece sawed off each end, the hairs cut level, and the handle shortened. It can then be used up to the last for sweeping grates, brushing up ashes, and so forth.

GLAD TO SPREAD GOOD NEWS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—The friends of Mrs Helen M Kowalczyk of 3819 Hope Avenue, were glad to hear that she has regained her health. For quite some time Mrs. Kowalczyk was quite ill and it was impossible for her to work. She took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build her up. After she had started taking it, she wrote to the Pinkham Company as follows: "I certainly loved Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel stronger already and sleep sounder. I am very glad to spread the good news of how it has helped me."

"Happy to Recommend Pinkham's."

Detroit, Michigan.—"I heard of this medicine through an advertisement in the 'Detroit News' and wrote to Mrs. Grace Gilliam, whose letter was published. Then I started taking the Vegetable Compound and got the best results. I used the Sanative Wash, too. I am really happy if I can advise women to take your medicines."—Mrs. M. E. Dr. Reed Warns of Diseases Carried In Books

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

HAVE you ever thought about the probability of spreading diseases through the agency of books?

Opinions of different authorities vary on this important question.

Whereas some research workers never succeeded in observing contagious germs never known others claim to have seen numerous cases in which infection had spread through books, letters and various other instruments. A case has been observed in which a sister coming from an infected house brought into another city and extremely virulent scarlet fever epidemic. Another observed cases of contamination through books in hospitals.

A striking case was reported where twenty employees in a sanitary bureau successively acquired tuberculosis and died from pulmonary consumption. The microscopic examination of books which were most frequently employed in the offices revealed that some of these books were infected with tubercle bacilli.

Further examination showed that the first infection occurred at a time when a clerk suffering from tuberculosis worked in the office. This clerk had the only visible habit of moistening his finger and saliva when turning leaves of the books. Many other authors have at different periods observed the same phenomena.

Recent experiments in France revealed interesting facts regarding the possibilities of infection with tuberculosis through books. It was proven that the inoculation of guinea pigs with bits of pages of books which had been artificially contaminated with tuberculosis bacilli and kept at an incubating temperature for 135 days, infected these animals with the disease.

These observations, however, that there is a marked difference between infected books kept in an obscure and damp cellar and those kept in an aerated room. Whereas books kept in the cellar remained infectious in spring after extremely dry days and more, books kept in a room full of fresh air and sunlight seem to be insufficient. On the other hand, very high temperature is lost their infectiousness in the course of five weeks.

The disgusting habit of moistening the fingers with saliva while turning the leaves of a book favors the penetration of infection into the organism.

The disinfection of books must be of a special character, as not every method of disinfection is applicable. They must be disinfected in a manner which would be harmless to the print, to the paper, and to the binding. The disinfection with the fumes of formaline appears to be inefficient. Even a temperature of 100 degrees C. during one hour does not affect books. Even the binding can readily stand such heat. As regards paper, experiments have shown that it may stand without any harm a temperature of 120 degrees C.

WHOSE CHILDREN shall we STARVE?

DO legislators believe that a few months' starvation is all right, but that it begins to get serious after five or six years?

There are 100,000 children in the United States today who are slowly starving to death. They are denied the economic assistance extended in forty-two states through mothers' pension laws, to other children. They are starving, not because of their own sins but because of the misfortunes of their parents.

DAILY SHORT STORY

ONE morning Rex Burton walked five miles on the road that went north and the next morning he doggedly covered five miles in the opposite direction. On the north road he passed a dark pond and a silo, an apple orchard and an inhospitable white house. On the south road he passed the abandoned brick school house and the sign board with disgustingly healthy young man advertising cigarettes, a roadside oil station—and the cottage.

You know, by the way he walked, that he was doing this thing for his health. He strode along with contemptuous glares at the scenery, his face set with the determination not to enjoy any of it. Ridiculous for a man of thirty-five to have a breakdown, and of all things, a nervous breakdown. To be made to live in the country and take walks — he hated the country!

Gold Digger.

And there was Phil Sterne, no doubt married by this time to that dancing woman he had become infatuated with. Phil was his ward, just twenty, and a junior in college. Burton had had three months letters from him about this dancer, Thiah. She wasn't like other girls. Of course not. They never were. Burton knew just the sort she was—a scheming, cold-blooded gold digger after the boy's money. And at the crucial moment, he had had to have a break-down and leave her a clear field. He hadn't heard from Phil for several weeks. Which probably meant that the girl had got him or failed. He had no hopes of the latter.

For four mornings Burton alternated conscientiously between the north road and the south road, but the fifth morning when it was the north road's turn, he went more slowly and less doggedly down the south road. And the next. At the end of the south road, you remember, was the cottage.

It was a pretty little cottage, but it wasn't the cottage that drew him down the south road every morning. It was a slim figure of a girl who lay listlessly in a comfortable chair full of pillows, under a big oak tree. He thought a great deal about the girl. She looked very young and frail, to be ill all alone in a rented cottage with no one but a trained nurse who looked more too cheerful to keep her company. He wished he could speak to her, after all she was very young—almost young enough to be his daughter, a slim, gold haired, lily-white bit of a thing. He would—he'd speak to her and cheer her up a little.

Characteristically, when he had decided, he acted at once. It was Sunday morning and the road was full of people going to church in the village. He met the nurse driving by with a farmer's family. His last touch of hesitation vanished. He walked briskly to the cottage, and went in at the gate, under his arm the box of chocolates he had bought in the village the evening before.

"Here, my dear—" he began, then stopped, and a deep flush burned his cheeks. This was no young girl, it was a woman, and a very lovely and appealing woman.

Took the Candy.

She took the candy with a pleasant smile, ignoring his confusion. "It's very kind of you," she said, "I'm so glad you stopped. I'm almost dead of loneliness—I thought country people were more friendly—"

She looked like a fairy-tale princess with her golden hair flowing over the bright silk pillows; her slender figure wrapped in a negligee of green satin edged with silver cut. But her brown eyes were too tired and her lovely face too white.

"I had a nervous breakdown," she explained, "It's really worse than being sick."

"I know—" he sympathized, "I'm here for the same reason."

She smiled a charming smile. "Then we must console each other." He walked back to his boarding house with feet that scarcely seemed to touch the ground.

The next morning he was on the south road at nine o'clock. She was in her chair, looking for him. Her face warmed up as he approached.

"You came along so briskly," she sounded wistful, "Soon you'll be getting quite well again."

He looked alarmed. "No, really, I'm not a bit well! I hardly slept at all last night." No need to tell her that he couldn't sleep because he was thinking about her.

"Of course I want you to get well—" she said softly, but she looked happier. And he was wounded by the thought that perhaps she might get well first. Not that he wanted her to be a permanent invalid, but—if she got well she would go away.

He spent the morning amusing her with light chatter from town and when the country girl who acted as maid brought out lunch and they had it together under the tree. They he surprised that she go for a walk with him. "Just a little one," he urged, "it will do you good."

She agreed at once. "Well that a more than she'd do for me, "said the nurse tartly, "I've tried and tried to get her to exercise."

More Like a Girl.

The girl made a little grimace after her. "Who'd want to go walking with her," she whispered resentfully. The nurse had put a plain little blue dress on her and had drawn the yellow hair back into a thick knot. It made her seem less like a fairy princess—more like a mortal girl. She stepped her hand under his arm, and they walked slowly down the road a half mile and back. She had quite a pretty touch of color when they got back from the cottage.

After that they walked together every day. He was selfishly alarmed at her improvement. Sometimes he caught her glance on him "You're getting so much better," she insisted. But he always denied it stoutly by he started Phil, "nobody could

by. He had all sorts of symptoms to retort with Really, he felt better than he had for a long time. He took a new warm interest in life. He felt full of happiness and energy. That affair of Phil's was off his mind too That was well-ended She had turned the boy down. Bigger game no doubt. He had written a manly letter to his guardian. "I don't want you to think it was her fault, he said, "She never encouraged me But I couldn't help loving her. No body could."

Next morning when he joined the girl she looked tired and listless. I'm going back to town," she told him "I've got to keep my engagements. I'm well enough and I can't afford not to." She went on, slowly. "I don't believe I ever told you, did I—I'm Thiah, the dancer—"

Nobody Could.

He stared blankly, then at sight of her pale quivering face, he forgot everything but that he loved her. He took her into his arms.

"If you've got to go back," he said, "You're going back with me."

"You cared—all the time—" she whispered happily.

"I couldn't help it," unconsciously

FOXY GRANDPA'S DAILY INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

ESTHER BLAKE has written me a letter congratulating herself. It's a nice letter. You feel like congratulating Esther yourself after you've read it.

The reason for Esther's gladness is that she and her husband are "pals" with their children. The children are rather young—Peter's twelve and Dorothy is ten. Hardly at the dangerous age as yet.

"But we're sure," says their fond mama, "that if we can make them feel that we're their pals, we won't lose touch with them eight or ten years from now. We see such sad things in our friends' homes—misunderstandings and actual quarrels between parents and children. And Fred and I are positive that it's all because parents haven't made pals of their children."

But this mother's letter is not one of congratulation. It is burdened with anxiety and poisoned by a growing bitterness.

"I've almost come to the conclusion," she cries, "that it does not pay to be a mother. I've lived up to all the best theories, and for years it seemed to work. When the children were in the grammar grades we were perfectly happy. They confided everything in me and sought my advice in everything. But from the day they entered high school things went wrong. I tried in every way to keep up the old bond of companionship. I went everywhere with them. I allowed them to fill the house with their friends. I sacrificed my comfort constantly in order to play with them. And what's the result? The other day my second daughter—the one in high school—asked me why I 'was always sticking around!'

It would be comforting to say that this second mother's letter cites an exceptional case—that "being pals" doesn't usually bear such disappointing fruit. But one can't say that. For in the vast majority of cases "being pals" does bear exactly that fruit. No matter how eager the older generation is to bridge the gap between itself and the young, that gap cannot be bridged.

In that wisest of all books on modern youth, "The Revolt of Modern Youth," by Judge Ben Lindsey, this judge says:

"Adults as a rule are not pals with children. Their interests are different. Adult cyborean and the adult point of view are different from the interests and point of view of youngsters: and any adult who tries to palm himself off as 'young in mind sense too often fails."

When your child has Croup

IN cases of spasmodic croup or kiddies' colds, the child's suffering and your anxiety will find quick relief through the soothing, healing, medicated vapors of Vicks VapoRub.

Which Vicks is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime it acts in two ways at once:—

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages and lungs, loosening the phlegm and easing the cough; and

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

Colds are usually better by morning and croup is often relieved with one application.

QUICK RELIEF FROM STOMACH DISORDER

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

PISTOL SHOT AROUSES FANS

Many listeners who heard the first episode last week of the Radio Mystery Play being broadcast on Thursday evenings at 9:30 o'clock from Station WNAC, The Shepard Stores, have written Mr. John Shepard, 3rd, for an explanation of the pistol shot heard at the conclusion of the last week's broadcast. A voice was heard to say that a murder had been committed in the studio. Some of the listeners called up to learn whether or not this was all part of the play or true.

SECOND EPISODE.

The second episode of this play "A Step on the Stairs," carries the listeners further on into the mystery when it is broadcast by WNAC on Thursday at 9:30 p. m. The WNAC Players, under the direction of Clyde McArdle, are all primed and full of the spine tickling atmosphere of the play. Special music has been prepared for the second episode to create a weird and ghostly atmosphere suggested by the theme of the story.

Radio listeners now know that the effect is far better if the lights are turned off or dimmed for the play. In fact, one listener from Waltham wrote: "The whole thing was pretty spooky to go to bed on," while another said: "We turned out the lights and sat there among thrills—they just used our backs for a ladder." All letters which have come in on the Mystery Play have complimented Station WNAC on this broadcast. A Wakefield listener said: "Leave it to WNAC if you want anything done right." Another wrote: "The play was, without question, the best broadcast of any sort to which I have listened."

This radio drama is the first serial drama ever put on the air. It is being broadcast from fifteen leading stations. The story is by Robert J. Casey, and Fred Smith dramatized it for radio transmission.

RADIO STORE OPENS FRIDAY

A new radio store, to be known as the Radio Salvage Stores, is opening Friday at No. 101 Washington street. It will specialize in the position of a clearing house for manufacturers and jobbers, with the result that goods will be sold to the retail trade at low prices on a strictly cash basis. It will be a close relative of the bargain basement, and should prove to be an important factor in the Boston radio world.

The men at the head of this new store are old hands in the radio field, who have given much study to its problems. Their conclusion has been that there is much unnecessary waste of parts and equipment for which there is actually a demand.

The Radio Salvage Store expects to cater particularly to the set-builder and experimenter. A man thoroughly versed in the technicalities of radio will be in charge, ready to design all sorts of sets, which can be built from the parts sold. Complete sets will also be offered for sale.

Radio Queries

Q. A. O. H. Worcester. Could you please tell me what makes the aerial and ground wire spark at the ends when not connected up? Last night's snow storms that we had, you could hear the snap of it and see the fire. It seemed to come mostly from the aerial.

A. A great many fans have written to us about this disturbance. It is caused by the static impulses picked up on the antenna and discharged to ground. If your sets were properly fitted with a lightning arrester, this would be automatically taken care of. In certain commercial stations this trouble has been encountered on the transmitting aerials to such an extent that the station could not be operated for hours at a time.

Q. M. L. Somerville. "I have a three tube Roberts set, using three 201-A Beacon tubes. My A battery is up to standard and the B batteries read 40 each. The antenna is about 60 feet long. All I get is good local reception which is very selective. I cannot get any distant stations, even after the locals have signed off. Can you tell me why this is?

A. Your trouble is the same as that which is being encountered by 80 per cent of all radio owners today. Nobody is getting any consistent long distance. Once in awhile a distant station is pulled in, but it seldom lasts more than a moment or two. This writer has an eight tube superhet, and has long since given up the idea of fishing for distance. Candidpan says hose terrible.

MAYOR OPPOSES STATE PENSION MEASURE

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols vigorously opposed the State pension scheme at the State house today on the ground that the present retirement system for city laborers gives them more reimbursement for a similar contribution. Secretary Edmund S. Cogswell of the pension commission contended that the pension law would not be as profitable to city workers of Boston as is the present retirement system. Chairman W. J. Doyle of the Boston Retirement Board was spokesman for the mayor, who had also sent a letter expressing his opposition to the bill.

MORE MEN FOR INSPECTION SERVICE

The present multiplicity of detailed inspection required in practically every city, due to the increasing interest and use of radio in several forms, requires additional subofficers, the testimony before the appropriations committee showed. In addition to its nine main district offices at Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle, Detroit and Chicago, the department needs subofficers in Dallas, Memphis, Los Angeles, Portland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Denver, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Omaha, where a new assistant inspector and a clerk are required.

These salaries would amount to about $3,400 at each subdivision. The department also requires an additional assistant inspector, at about $2,100 per year, in each district office for night work, when much of the testing and listening in has to be done. These inspectors will serve between 7 and 12 at night, relieving the day men, who have frequently been forced to work overtime at night.

Under the new appropriations it is possible that there will also be assigned assistant inspectors at the main offices in Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, San Francisco, Seattle and Chicago and two at Detroit, where the inspection of shore and ship stations is heaviest.

Additional clerks are required in the present sub-offices at Norfolk, Philadelphia and Savannah, and at main offices at New Orleans and Seattle. Repairs to present instruments and allotments for new instruments are estimated at about $5,000.

MUSIC FIRM'S MAILING PRIVILEGE TAKEN AWAY

Washington, March 4 (I.N.S.).—The Post Office Department today issued a fraud order denying the use of the mails to the Paragon Music Company of New York and its general manager, Robert Muneen. The department charged the company obtained money "falsely and fraudulently" in promising high returns to writers of songs.

A GOOD, CLEAN NEWSPAPER

BOSTON SUNDAY EVENING AMERICAN

BE A BOSTON BOOSTER

Nothing Is Ever Settled Until Settled Right

Time and again the political history of the United States has demonstrated that "Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right."

The Missouri Compromise did not settle the slavery question, because there could be no compromise with slavery. It took a long and bitter Civil War before Lincoln settled the question right.

The compromise which the Tories made with the Government of George the Third settled nothing. Our controversy with tyranny continued until George Washington in seven years of fighting settled it right.

Everything that is American in us loves the kind of fight that Senator William E. Borah and Senator James A. Reed are leading to get us out of the World Court of the League of Nations.

Nothing was settled by the timid votes of the Senate that sent us off toward the Court, for it was not settled right. It was not settled in accord with the mandate of the American people in 1920, when, by a majority of seven million votes, they indorsed the Republican party's promise to keep us out of Europe's affairs.

That vote was the result of a glorious fight waged by these same Senators six years ago. Reed and Borah and Hiram Johnson commanded the handful in the Senate who opposed our leading the parade into the League of Nations in 1919.

Most of the leading newspapers of the country in 1919 called these men "noisy windbags," "blind reactionaries," "poisonous partisans," "cheap politicians," "unscrupulous politicians," "pigmy-minded politicians." Nevertheless, they persevered, and the policy of strict aloofness from the League of Nations is today the chief foreign policy of the Republic.

Six years ago Borah and Reed and Johnson defeated the League by debating its entrapments, before the Senate, until the country understood. This time the reactionaries of the Senate applied the gag rule and forced the World Court through without adequate debate.

Fortunately the reactionary politicians cannot gag the press or the public forum, where American Senators will continue to discuss the World Court until the people understand it and settle it right.

Up Mt. Mansfield on Skis

What Fun This Winter Has Been!—Or Are Your Arteries Hardening?

When the history of Winter sports in New England is written, season of 1925-26, there must be a place of honor for C. O. Burt, Jr., and Robert Wells, Stowe, Vt., boys, who on a recent Sunday climbed Mt. Mansfield on skis.

Mt. Mansfield, twenty miles northwest of Waterbury and just beyond the pretty village where the boys make their home, is the highest peak in Vermont.

Young Burt is 10 years old and "Bob" Wells one year older. It detracts little from the achievement of lads so young that they were accompanied by C. O. Burt, Sr.

Stopping half way up to eat their lunch, they reached the Summit House at 4:45 o'clock, having made the ascent in five hours.

Miles across the snow-white vista they saw the White Mountain range, the level country to the north, the spur and the gullies on Mt. Washington. Lake Champlain and the Adirondacks seemed "near at hand."

Coming down was easier, as it is in business, politics, journalism, almost everything. In 23 minutes they were at the half-way house and seven minutes later stopped at the toll house, four miles and a half in 30 minutes!

"Bob" Wells recommends the trip to every healthy person in New England. "I like SEEING motion pictures," he writes, "but I very much prefer LIVING them!"

For the Sake of Your Insides

Don't Be Earth's Biggest Monkey

General Andrews, of the U. S. Treasury, urges the public not to finance a menace to social order by buying from bootleggers. The public doesn't take that seriously, but for the sake of its own insides it should take seriously these facts. The Government analyzing 35,000 samples of bootleg wines and liquors finds 99 in every 100 absolutely poisonous. Some are so poisonous as to cause death or blindness in a short time. All but one in every hundred are sufficiently poisonous to shorten life.

Frederick Landis described in detail the world's smallest monkey, living at San Diego, eating three times its own weight in bananas and grapes every day. He then went on to say that earth's biggest monkey is the man who drinks bootleg liquor without studying recent graveyard statistics. Be warned.

Our Biggest Army

11,500,000 Strong

The old republic of Athens didn't last because it lacked respect for women and admitted too much black and yellow blood from Africa and Asia. Practically all of the citizens held public office in some shape. Are we on the same path?

When Thomas Jefferson was President, there was one public official for every 1,000 of adult population. In the proportion to population during the Civil War, ten times as many public officials were on the payroll. In Grover Cleveland's day one adult in twenty was a public official of some kind, and now it is one in ten.

How soon will each adult be carrying around a full-grown office-holder on his back? Capper's Weekly asks the question, and it interests everybody.

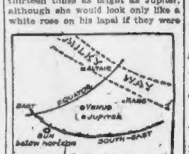
VENUS IS NOW IN HER MORNING GLORY

By Garrett P. Servis

As the windy month of March opens, get up before daybreak and see Venus in her morning glory. She is never so beautiful; never so captivating. On the third of January she was at her brightest as "evening star"; on March 14 she will attain her greatest brilliance as morning star. She is still near her great brother, Jupiter, with whom she was in conjunction February 18.

Our little sketch map will perhaps aid you. The hour for observation is before the dawn—say, 5 or 5:30 o'clock. Venus is now about thirteen times as bright as Jupiter, although she would look only like a white rose on his lapel if they were really together. He is as broad as a dozen Venuses, but distance belittles his magnitude. She is only some 32,000,000 miles away, while his distance is about 533,000,000.



Look at her with your telescope, no matter how small it may be, even if it is a pocket folding telescope, magnifying only fifteen times. You will see her in the form of a beautiful crescent. It was Galileo's discovery with the first telescopes of the phases of Venus, resembling the phases of the moon, that helped to shut the mouths of the opponents of the Copernician system.

Perhaps as you look at Venus warming the frosty morning with her bright smile you will feel a stir of poetry in your veins; Venus has always inspired poets and near-poets. Hear the strain of an anonymous newspaper rhymer which broke forth at the time of Venus' great transit not with the sun, which lasted all a December day in 1882:

Venus.

"O'er the trembling seas of ether,
O'er the breathless fields of night,
Fly I to mine ancient lover, to the red-faced lord of light.
La! I wonder where my moon is?
I must look a perfect fright!
How this glare tries one's complexion. Can you have forgotten me?
Men folks are so fickle! I'm no chicken either; let me see.
More than five score years ago I parted from my heart's desire.
Maybe he is faithless; is another's.
There he is, as red as fire."

Sol.

"What, Ma'am Venus, whom I haven't seen since seventeen sixty-nine!
She's stouter grown than in the days when I asked her to be mine.
Why will the baggage gad through space without a single sign
Of a satellite duenna or a chaperening moon? . . . "

Venus.

"Come to my arms my own, my long lost Sun!
I've come to spend the day with you.
Don't look at my back hair,
That horrid Mars has rumpled it."

Sol.

"That blush makes you more fair."

Venus.

"Those dreadful men on earth are staring hard as they can stare.
The reflected from his nose, the tedious old bore?"

Sol.

"She'll stay to lunch, confound her!
Of her intrusive impudence before two-thousand-and-four."

"Horrid Mars" is also on hand on this occasion, though at considerable distance toward the west, at the edge of the Milky Way, and near the stars of the "Milk Dipper" of Sagittarius. Poor old warrior planet! he has become pale and shrunken. There is only one first magnitude fixed star near enough to be remarked—the beautiful Altair in the Eagle, also at the edge of the Milky Way, but above the celestial equator.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "PAGING THE TALL MAN"

SOME YOUNG GIRLS say
IT IS BETTER TO HAVE LOVED A SHORT MAN THAN NEVER TO HAVE LOVED
A "TALL."
Why is it ALL women are
Partial to TALL men?
Is it that GIRLS LIKE
To LOOK UP to a man,
(And his height is Sometimes the only reason
They can find), or is it
That the AVERAGE WOMAN
REALLY LIKES to be MADE TO FEEL SMALL?

WOMEN invariably apologize
For a SMALL MAN;
Though why, no small
Man can IMAGINE.
A TALL MAN can see OVER
Other people's heads,
But a SHORT, SHREWD ONE
Often sees THROUGH THEM.
BIG MEN may have LOOKS
But some small men have VISION. Tall men are Often LED by a little woman,
But LITTLE MEN are often
MISLED. After all,
WHAT'S THE ODDS? It's the HEARS
Not the FEET that COUNT.

"Wherever You See a Head, Hit It!"

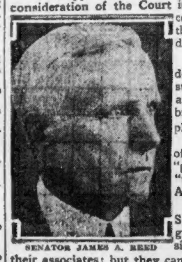
By JAMES A. REED

U. S. Senator from Missouri

(The following is part of Senator Reed's splendid oration in Chicago on Washington's Birthday, protesting against the "gag rule" by which the World Court was forced through the Senate while its opponents were in the midst of their debate against it.)

My judgment is that the people will undo the action of the Senate when they go to the polls this Fall.

The application of the gag rule, which cut off adequate consideration of the Court issue, was the result of protests coming in from the country and threatening to result in wholesale desertions of pro-Court Senators.



SENATOR JAMES A. REED

Something had to be done and done quickly. Accordingly, to steady the wavering ranks, five additional reservations were brought forward, the "gag" applied, and the vote forced.

It was indecent haste born of cowardice. I appeal from the "gag" rule of the Senate to the "ungagged" judgment of the American people.

Sixty-eight members of the Senate may close their ears to argument and reason. They may silence the protesting voices of their associates; buy they cannot close the ears or silence the lips of the 110,000,000 American citizens who still own the United States and who still possess the right of freedom of speech and action.

My prediction and my hope is that every man who voted for this iniquitous measure and supported these tyrannical and outrageous methods will be defeated for re-election. As to all of them. I recommend to the voters a vigorous application of the maxim of Donnybrook Fair:

"Wherever you see a head, hit it."

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

FINANCIAL statistics show that over a million dollars were made last year in kisses sold at charity bazaars.

AN Ohio dame sold over twenty-five hundred in one evening without even batting in lipstick.

SHE would have sold twice that many, but she had a homely girl helping her.

SHE'D take the money and the other dame would deliver the goods.

A SCOTCHMAN tried to save himself some money by buying them direct.

NO man is going to pay a pretty dame ten bucks for a kiss when a homely girl is selling them two for a quarter.

HE can close his eyes. He doesn't have to see what he's getting.

ONE guy started buying kisses from a beautiful woman and before he knew it he had run up a bill of nine hundred dollars.

THE girl finally got suspicious and called in her credit man.

WHEN the fellow wouldn't pay, the manager closed his account.

THIS very seldom happens, as a smart woman always gets her money in advance.

BUSINESS MERGERS OF FUTURE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE press recently reported a huge Wall Street merger manipulated by Mr. Clarence J. Dillon and others.

This calls attention to the fact that such mergers are becoming more and more common. It is the tendency of capital to coagulate, because as a rule there are more profits and less waste in co-operation than in competition.

The immense slaughter houses in Chicago kill and supply meat at much less expense to the consumer than he had to bear during the days of private slaughter houses.

Besides this, the conditions are more sanitary and are more easily watched by the authorities.

What is going to happen if business keeps on concentrating?

The world will be full of huge industrial units, and people will find out that there are more profits to be made by combining and working together than by working apart.

Ex-Governor Lowden is doing heroic work in endeavoring to impress upon the farmers their need of co-operation. Farming at present is the loosest form of business. It is about the only kind of business that remains without any considerable units of organization.

There is a certain amount of freedom involved in this, and freedom is very dear to the heart of the American.

But the laboring man found out long ago that this freedom, although it was very dear, was too expensive, and he is combining for his own good with the labor unions.

It is not very far off when the farmers will hit upon some practical scheme of organization. The combination of the fruit growers of California has proven very beneficial.

It was not very many years ago that a millionaire or a unit of a million dollars was a rarity. Now it is very common, and the day is not far off when the billionaire shall be common.

This is an era of business. We can hardly expect to find a political leader who shall stand out above the general mass as did Napoleon, but it is not too much to expect a number of business leaders who will excel more in the genius for combination than in the ability to construct or distribute goods.

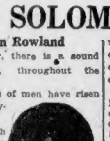
MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

MY Daughter, there is a sound of revolt, throughout the Land!

Lo, the voices of men have risen in protest, crying:

"Down with the DOUBLE STANDARD in collars! Down with the four-ply linen and the tyranny of Woman!



Helen Rowland

"Down with the throat-cutters, the starched chokers, and the ingrowing collar-buttons!

"Wherefore, shall there be ONE law for man—and NONE for woman?

"Therefore, shall a man's neck be cribbed, cabined and confined in rigid linen, while a woman's neck is free to turn whithersoever it listeth?

"Alas, too long have we submitted to the Inconsistent Sex, and permitted wives and dumb-bells and debutantes to dictate the covering of our necks, and the swathing of our Adams Apples!

"Then, let us be free and equal! For a man's Adams Apple is his only remaining mark of masculine distinction! And, why shall he hide it with blushing?"

And, behold, the Lords of the Navy have rent their bonds and flung away their bulwark of manly beauty, and betaken themselves to TURNDOWN collars!

And the chieftains of the Army have stripped their captains and lieutenants of all their charm and glory and robbed them of their cholera. And, lo, it hath come to pass, that thou canst not tell an Admiral from a bellhop, nor a General from an hotel porter!

Alas, where is there beauty, where is there glamour, where is there a thrill in all Babylon?

For, love must indeed be blind, if a woman can lose her heart to a man-without-a-collar!
